guished career as a unioneer under the illustrious leadership of William Green.

Brother Jones hired two poor saps from Oklahoma to blow up some buildings under construction in which CIO workers got the jobs which, otherwise, might have gone to his union. These brothers mistimed one of their firecrackers and it killed one of them. Before that, Brother Jones had procured the destruction by a bomb of a steam shovel on another job, but he was not tried for that one. Although the charge of malicious destruction of property, on which Brother Jones was tried sounds rather trivial in the case of a union gorilla, it will be seen that the Jones thing in Akron was really quite dignified because a man lost his life.

Brother Jones had run up a record of four convictions in preparing himself for his position as a colleague of Brother Green in union leadership. One was a small larceny job; in another he stole a horse and buggy and thereafter he was convicted of sexual offenses against two young children.

He got three consecutive sentences of from one to seven years each on the present charge, surrendered on March 11 and is now No. 79182 in that type of institution in which so many other prominent unioneers received their training.

Brother Jones' fellow unioneers in Akron fronted for him promptly when he was arrested and denounced Alva J. Russell, the county prosecutor, as an enemy of labor. Nevertheless, because of the heat, they had to pay lip service to the law and so said they would cooperate fully in running down the dastardly dastards who had done this evil thing which, of course, they heartily deplored. However, they never did anything to help Mr. Russell and he got the conviction in spite of their non-

Syracuse, N.Y., of an indictment against Joe Fay, one of the vice presidents of the international or parent union, for slugging a minor official of one of the upstate locals named Orville Warner.

Fay is a dangerous drunk who has been getting away with union rackets for years in collaboration with the mob of candle-burners who follow Frank Hague in Jersey and it was he who slugged David Dubinsky of the Garment Workers that time when the A. F. of L. was holding its annual convention in the appropriate surroundings of the New Orleans hotel run by Seymour Weiss, the boss thief of the old Long mob who has just been bowed out of prison on a commutation by the ever-loving and forgiving United States department of justice after serving a brief fraction of the term imposed. Fay took personal offense at Dave's proposal that racketeers like him be eliminated.

He kicked the whey out of Warner and got himself indicted on a felony charge good for five years and this time our hoodlum friend was really scared. But he hired a mess of very distinguished and expensive counsel and on the day of the trial, well, what do you know? Brother Warner he ain't there to press the charge. Nope, Brother Warner is absent, so when one of the distinguished lawyers had the cold, unsmiling gall to tell the court that the gorilla's services as a unioneer are vital to the national defense, why, the judge he turned Fay loose.

But stick around, because one of these days the whole story of this mob of political unioneers will curl your hair. Gov. Lehman has turned loose the New York state attorney general's office on Joe Moreschis crooked mob who run the hod carriers' racket, which has extorted about $3,000,000 from poor stiffs all over the country on defense jobs, and if Gov. Lehman is really shooting, the same investigation can turn up the Fay mob which is deep in the crooked politics of New York City, because Fay's mob and Moreschi's work together like the axis.

Legion Asks Law Against Slowdown

SANTA BARBARA, April 13. (AP)—The California department of the American Legion, through its executive committee, has asked congress to enact legislation making slowdowns in war industry treason against the United States.

The committee also drafted a resolution calling upon Governor Olson to call a special session of the legislature to establish an "adequate" state guard of not less than 20,000 men.
