that was set up specifically for wheel work. And we worked in that area of this garage that had bays with lifts and all of the accouterments that one might envision in an automobile mechanic garage.

Q Okay. Then you took samples, I guess?

A We set it up, and it was a contrived circumstance to be repeatable. So we essentially set it up to as closely duplicate what we had observed and monitor for a while as to their activities and repeat it.

Q And can you tell the jury what those activities were?

A Yes, sir. It was essentially to look at the removal, servicing, and repair, as necessary, the rear wheels, the brakes on the rear wheels of light duty vehicles: An automobile, a pickup truck, and a light duty van.

Q Okay. And you have indicated that you took samples.

Were you taking peak samples?

A No. We looked at the entire interval of
