GARDEN PHILOSOPHY

There is life in the ground; it goes into the seed; and it also, when it is stirred up, goes into the man who stirs it. (Charles Dudley Warner.)

t he's With all the new homes lead- sprouting throughout the East-bay, it's logical that people attempt to pick up new gardening techniques and approaches to make their work easier. More than ever, I think the 30th anniversary show, opening next Saturday, will be one o' the best.

re Take the subject of espalier or wall plants, for example. You'll get lots of ideas by checking the model gardens outdoors. They may help you camouflage a wall in a more clever fashion than merely running a vine up against it.

read your are In my European rambles I learned that espalier specimens are used over there for the special purpose of getting fruit to ripen against warm southern walls. It's an idea that goes back to the Monks of medieval times. They knew that if they could train an extra bit of heat off a wall to ripening pearlies, figs and other borderline plants could be encouraged to ripen.

mes lone ular chi- This pee, rate Al- ers. But here in the West in recent years we've drifted away from the idea of using espalier specimens strictly for fruiting purposes. As a matter of fact, this is an exacting hobby reserved for specialists. Instead, we've gone to the idea of using plants which can be grown flat against walls, trellises and fences to create beautiful pat-
