Western Caucus & Friends,

This week, we're traveling to the heart of Washington State to explore and discuss agriculture, National parks, multiple land-use, and agencies that have weaponized fake science, amongst other similar topics. Our Fall policy roundtable will focus on federal bureaucrats' use of shoddy science that's not peer reviewed nor follows proper procedures to force predetermined policy decisions.

This will be a live digital event moderated by our Western Caucus Foundation Chairman Paul Gosar and Vice Chair, Rep. Dan Newhouse (WA-4) that will be broadcast on Zoom and Facebook Live. Additional participants will include other Western Caucus members, senior appointed officials from the Executive Branch, as well as subject matter experts.

Again, this event will be broadcast live via Facebook, and it will be open to the press and the public. We will also be broadcasting a virtual field tour - stay tuned for additional details.

* This annual event will bring together a number of Congressional Western Caucus members, congressional staff, executive branch administration officials, public policy experts, senior executives from organizations who are Foundation stakeholders, and Foundation guests.

 These events are by invitation only. These events are planned to fully comply with congressional ethics rules and other applicable laws. Health and safety recommendations will be followed for all events and activities.
