Sample Laws Against Noise Sought by City

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The city of Los Angeles is seeking to have the state legislature pass laws to control noise pollution. The city's noise abatement commission, headed by Mayor Thomas B. Stanley, has drafted a set of sample laws to be sent to the state legislature.

The commission, which was created by the city council last year, has been working on the problem of noise pollution for some time. It has held many public hearings and has received many suggestions from citizens. The commission's report, which is being prepared by the city's law department, will be sent to the state legislature in the near future.
