Dear Dr. Kehoe:

The editor of the Journal "Archives of Environmental Health" wrote to me and asked permission to give you a copy of my "Environments of Lead" paper so that you could write a criticism which would appear in the same issue of the Journal.

Although the editorial policies of Journals vary, the most widely followed procedure in such a situation is: first, an article appears in a Journal; second, a reader of the Journal writes a criticism to the editor, who then sends a copy of the criticism to the author of the original article; and then, criticism by the critic and the rebuttal by the author together.

Thank you for your interest in my paper.

Sincerely,

Clair C. Patterson
