

Mideast Crisis to Eisenhower

PEORIA, Ill., Oct. 30 (AP)—Sen. Estes Kefauver said tonight the Eisenhower administration's "confusion and inconsistency" may put France, Britain and Israel on one side of the Middle Eastern conflict, and "the Soviet Union and us and Egypt on the other."

The Democratic Vice-Presidential nominee charged that a large part of the responsibility for the Middle East crisis must rest with the administration, and on Secretary of State Dulles in particular.

He told a news conference. "It is quite clear that in the Middle East, the Republican administration's lack of any consistent policy for the last three years has aided the development of the present crisis."

Day of Campaigning

Kefauver was briefed on the fast-breaking developments surrounding the Israeli invasion of Egypt as he wound up a day of campaigning through normally Republican Central Illinois.

Kefauver refused to predict what effect, if any, the Mideast crisis will have on the election. But he said "If we had tried to get a real peace years ago" in the area, "we wouldn't have this now."

RUSS DENIES U.S. ELECTION INTERFERENCE

MOSCOW, Oct. 30 (AP)—Soviet Foreign Minister Dimitri Shepilov says Premier Bulganin didn't mean to interfere in the U.S. election with his letter to President Eisenhower suggesting a ban on H-bomb tests.

Shepilov told western correspondents at a reception.

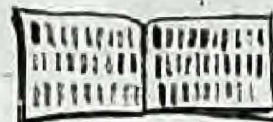

"We did not connect it with the American election. The message raised the question of banning nuclear explosions. I believe that Mr. Bulganin did not think of either the monkey or the elephant."
