Subject Waxide Paper Company

Some time ago we submitted through Anniston Research Department, samples of paper from subject firm on which a determination of biphenyl content was sought. We realize you are handicapped for help and that the analytical methods you have for this determination may not be too good, but with all its faults, it will be a help to our customer if we can get this information. We wonder if you wouldn't be willing to expedite this analysis so that we can help them plan their future use of our materials.
