SHORT STAY RECORD

THIS FORM TO BE USED FOR OUT PATIENT SURGERY AND ONE DAY STAY CASES
(Deaths excluded)

FINAL DIAGNOSIS: ANGIOSARCOMA OF THE LIVER.

HISTORY: 65 year old male with the above mentioned diagnosis is readmitted for chemotherapy. Ever since he was diagnosed in March 1984, he has been treated with Adriamycin which was escalated slowly as his total bilirubin was decreasing gradually. He feels less anorectic and less weakness but over the last three weeks duration, he noted increasing size of the abdomen.

PHYSICAL: The patient is well developed but chronically ill appearing emaciated male not in acute distress, fully alert. Skin, dry and dehydrated and he had papillary eruptions in the right forearm as described before. No change in size or numbers. The largest one 2.5 x 2.5 cm. HEENT, Sclerae not icteric. Conjunctivae pale. Funduscopic examination did not disclose papilledema or hemorrhage. Tongue papillated and no mucositis in the oral cavity. Neck supple, no palpable lymph nodes. Heart, RSR normal. Normal S1 S2. No murmurs or gallops. Lungs are clear to P and A. Abdomen, markedly distended. The abdominal circumference around the umbilicus 119 cm. Because of this ascites, I cannot appreciate the size of the liver well but it is 7 cm. below the right costal margin. Extremities, no peripheral edema, no bony tenderness. Neuro, all within normal limits.

PROGRESS AND SUMMARY

Obtained CBC all acceptable level for continuation of chemotherapy and no significant interval changes for EKG and I increased the Adriamycin up to 75 mg. per meter square. For his arthritis, I gave him Aldactone. I obtained CT scan of the abdomen and showed tumors in the liver showing much decrease in the size but he developed ascites which was not present in the past and also had some collection of fluid in the right pleural space with mild degree of atelectasis in the right lower lobe of the lung.

The patient will be followed as an outpatient.
