Monsanto will completely withdraw as a supplier of PCB dielectrics October 31, 1977. The decision has been made after consultation with product management and legal that we will not send out literature after October 31. This is primarily because environmental regulations are changing in the United States, thus making portions of our literature obsolete. If we continue to send out literature there is the potential of providing misleading or inaccurate information.

Reference copies of the various literature are to be retained in accordance with MIC/Advertising records retention guidelines for obsolete literature.

The following action is requested of you:

(a) Insure that no PCB dielectrics literature is sent to customers/users after October 31, 1977.

(b) Except for file copies, destroy all PCB dielectrics literature in your area and in literature storage as soon as possible after October 31.

(c) Confirm to J. A. Alley/Dave Wood/W. D. Lubic when (b) is accomplished.

Thank you for your cooperation.
