

Message

From: Daguillard, Robert [/O=EXCHANGELABS/OU=EXCHANGE ADMINISTRATIVE GROUP (FYDIBOHF23SPDLT)/CN=RECIPIENTS/CN=BBE9682B940C4F2C90732E4D37355DD4-DAGUILLARD,]
Sent: 4/2/2018 5:58:41 PM
To: Lyndsey Gilpin [Ex. 6]
Subject: RE: Story on changes to coal ash rules for the Daily Beast

Good afternoon Lindsey,

A quick word to acknowledge receipt. What's your hard deadline, please? And when are you hoping to publish your story?

Cheers, R.

Robert Daguillard
Office of Media Relations
U.S. Environmental Protection Agency
Washington, DC
+1 (202) 564-6618 (O)
[Ex. 6] (M)

From: Lyndsey Gilpin [Ex. 6]
Sent: Monday, April 02, 2018 1:56 PM
To: Daguillard, Robert <Daguillard.Robert@epa.gov>
Subject: Story on changes to coal ash rules for the Daily Beast

Hi Robert,

I am working on a separate story for the Daily Beast, this time on coal ash.

I had a few questions I wanted to run by you. If these could be answered by EOD tomorrow that'd be great.

1. The EPA has recently announced changing some parts of the federal regulations on coal ash. What sorts of changes are in store and how will this help coal ash sites be cleaned up, monitored, and moved?
2. How will the EPA still monitor and maintain coal ash, which has been shown to pose risks to human health?
3. How will these sites be maintained and monitored to ensure spills like the Kingston plant in 2008 don't happen again?
4. What sorts of public health impacts can coal ash ponds have on nearby communities and cleanup workers, and what precautions is the EPA taking to make sure these health impacts are mitigated as regulations are loosened?

Thanks,

--
Lyndsey Gilpin
@lyndseygilpin
lyndseygilpin.com
502-468-1963

Subscribe to Southerly, my newsletter about ecology, justice, and culture in the American South.