attached to the outside of the house. It's function is to note weather changes before their effects are felt inside the home. For each ten degree drop outside, for instance, the unit calls for a one degree increase in interior temperature to compensate.

The inside thermostat is finished in white and gold and will mount inconspicuously in any decor the manufacturer feels. An inner dial makes the desired temperature setting for daytime and outer ring dial is set for night.

There is an electronic system and the temperature changes activate the controls using the old physics principle that a cold wire is a poorer conductor than a hot one. These differences in current are registered in an electronic control center that calibrates the "information" and passes on a signal to the heating plant.

The control center is housed behind an attractive concave clock face ideal for kitchen or utility room use. The surface is of brushed aluminum with plastic hour markers.

Cost of the installation varies with the home from about $150 for a new house to about $200 on a completed home where additional modifications must be made.

For the names of the manufacturers of these two lines of thermostats, call SUtter 1-2424, Extension 272, today through Friday from 9 to 5. Or write Modern Living, The Examiner, P. O. Box 3071, Rincon Annex, San Francisco 19.
