

1 And Ford had a continuing duty to warn, so
2 the Judge has instructed you on that, but their duty
3 did not just end in 1930.

4 Their duty continued on, and that is why a
5 lot of the time today we have re-calls.

6 I am going to just show you what I believe
7 the Judge has already given you verbatim on continuing 8 duty to warn.

9 A manufacturer's or supplier's or 10 installer's duty to warn does not cease when the 11 product is marketed.

12 In other words, there is a continuing duty
13 to warn of dangerous defects after the product has 14 been sold or discontinued.

15 Reading at the bottom.

16 Generally, a manufacturer, conduit supplier
17 and installer and/or supplier of a defective product 18 has a duty to warn of product defects which they 19 discover after time of sale and must make reasonable
20 efforts to issue a post-sale warning.

21 In other words, there is a continuing duty
