Hello All,

Allow me to share another awful experience with you. Please see the pictures below.

Today is Saturday, June 24, 2018.

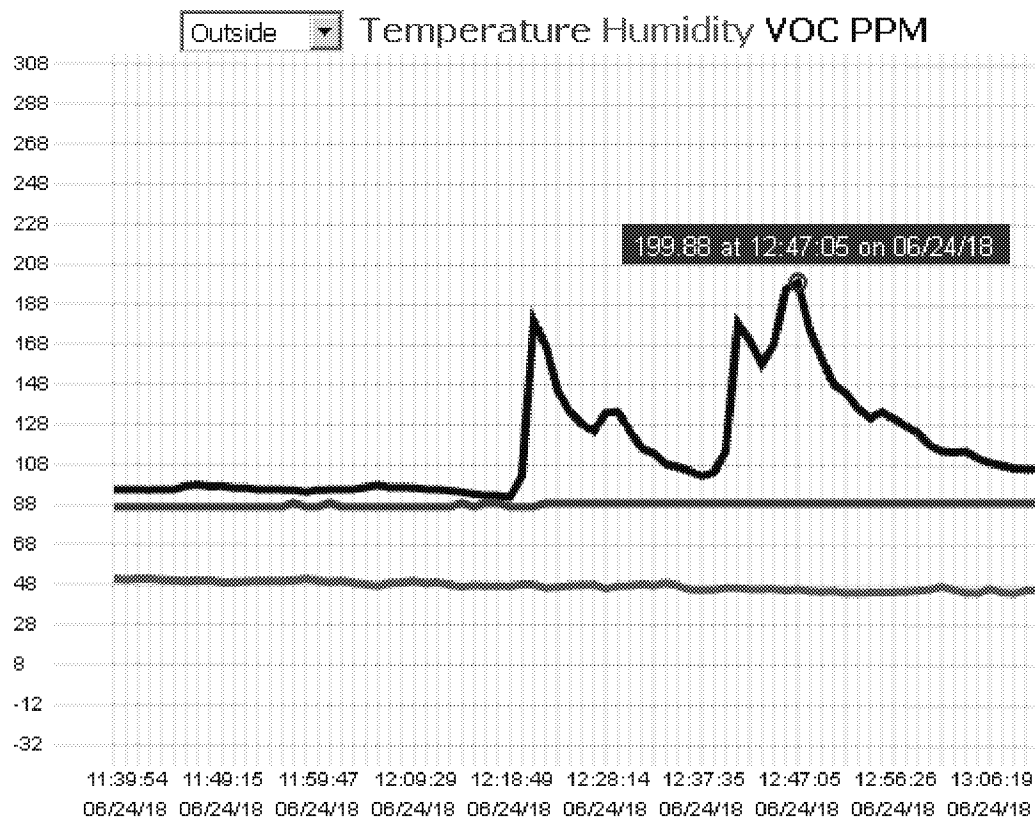

At about 12:15 pm this monster truck shows up:

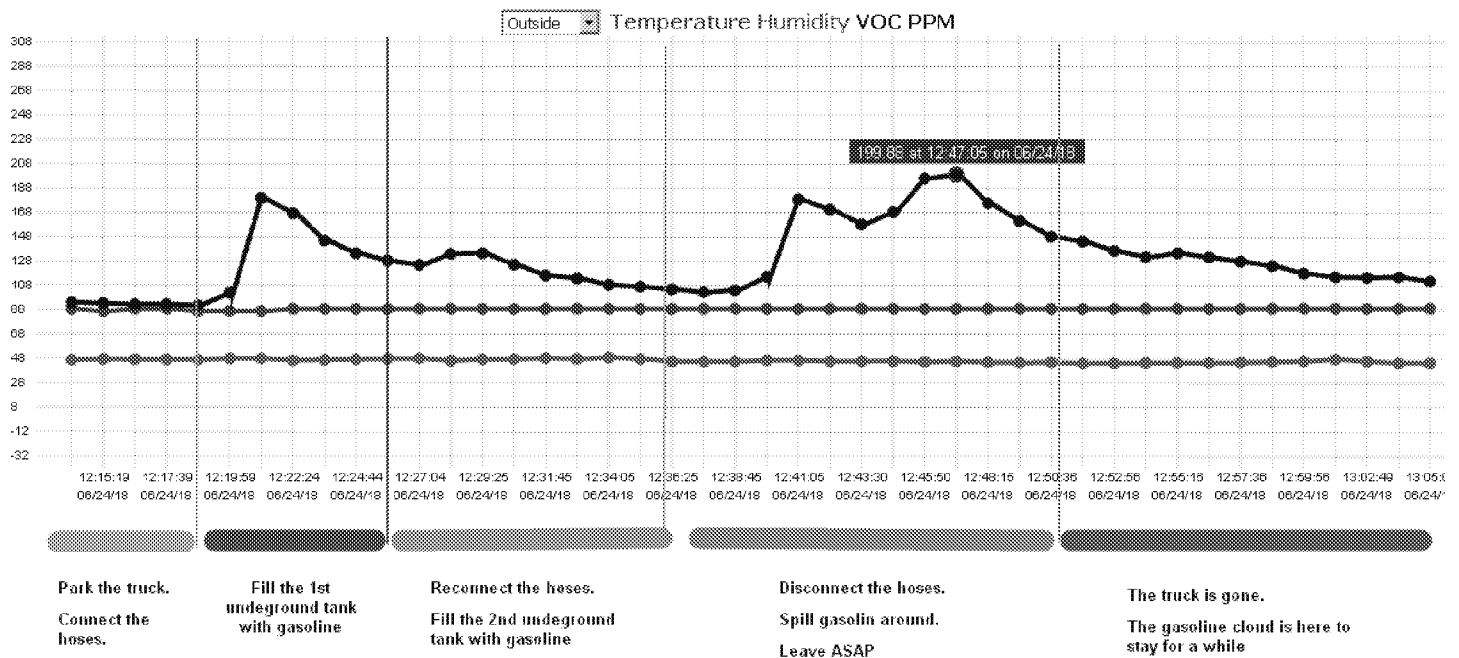

the driver connects the hoses

and begins the torture procedure:

here is a detailed explanation of what happened today:

So in this case between 12:20 pm and 13:10 pm you are in a total lock down mode and god forbid if you left a window open or thermostat controlled attic fan turns on or central air condition system is ready to cool you down or you want something extravagant like going outside and do some work in the garden or simply would like to have a breath of fresh air. And don't even think about opening front or back door unless you want to smell the gasoline for the rest of the day.

I realize that the reason you are unable to save us from this hell at this point in time is because you have limited powers, but perhaps if you join forces and work together then you will be able to rescue that one family that really needs your help right now.
