cions were aroused when he remembered that a few characters had strolled in and asked to buy "desalting kits" before he even heard of them. They had offered any-

"When I told them that I knew about the silver, their reaction was one of surprise," Hammer told the house committee. "They buy the kits at five to 40 cents each and asked what they intended to do with them. They said nonchalantly that they thought they could use the cheap plastic bag they contained."

What a pleasant difference good lighting makes in a home! Rooms come alive with bright cheerfulness! The easy chair beside the reading lamp invites relaxation. Even from the outside, the house seems to say "Welcome!"

But the beauty of a well-lighted house is more than "skin deep." It is a home free from eyestrain... a home protected from the many accidents caused by poor lighting. It is a place where children and grown-ups alike live, work, and play in added comfort and security. There's really no place like home when it's well lighted!

FILL EMPTY SOCKETS

With the end of material shortages in sight, light bulbs are becoming plentiful once again. Now you can fill those empty sockets, or replace undersized bulbs with brighter ones. 100-watt bulbs are recommended for general lighting, 150 watts for reading, and a 100-200-300-watt lamp for close work such as sewing. And a few spares in different sizes will keep your home always looking cheery and bright.
