Dear Dr. Fishbein:

I am sending you herewith an article which contains the results of several years experimentation with tetraethyl lead. I am sending it to the American Medical Association because I think there are some matters in it that are of interest and importance to the medical profession at large. Though it is somewhat lengthy, I have found it impossible to make any further deletions without damaging the subject matter considerably. I trust that you will find it satisfactory for publication in the Journal.

Very truly yours,
