Dear Dr. Edgar:

I am sending you herewith a copy of our paper which is now about ready for publication. I expect to make a few slight modifications here and there, but I believe the paper is in fairly satisfactory form for publication. I should appreciate it very much if you would find it convenient to go over it and make any critical remarks or suggestions which occur to you. I am particularly anxious to have your judgment on whether or not various points which I have made, or attempted to make, are quite clear, or whether they require a little expansion. I have attempted throughout to abbreviate the purely physiological discussion. My only reservation about this is as to whether I have abbreviated it a bit too much in one or two places.

You may be interested to know that Dr. Machle's paper was accepted promptly by the Journal of the American Medical Association in which it will appear in due time.

With kindest personal regards,

Cordially yours,

RAK:is
