I guess that I am okay with it. I had actually wondered why we had included it to begin with, but did not voice my question. The only downside that I can see is explaining the discrepancy between the sponsors funding commitment and the new budget. Guess that we are asking them to do the math. We might consider revising the sentence to say

The BHRC has identified a number of changes that reduce the project budget from the original $22,800,000 to meet the funding commitment.

Regards,
Patsy

Oversight Committee & counselors:

Sorry to bother you one more time on this. Attached is the revised budget change response with one significant change - dropping the funding table and the reference thereof. This will keep the emphasis on the Consortium's plans to proceed; funding issues will be subsequently addressed with each company via modification of its agreement with API.

Please let me know by cob if this causes you any serious concern.
