Dear Dr. Kehoe:

This acknowledges with warm appreciation your interesting letter of February 10. I am especially glad that you took the time to set forth clearly the background and functions of the laboratory. I am especially interested in the advantages you set forth in pursuing such research as you are engaged in, within a medical school rather than an industrial organization.

If you could supplement your statement by a bibliography of staff publications, it would complete the picture for us.

Sincerely,

Esther Everett Lape
