Another document from Saranac Labs, February 6, 1956, never received this document.

For that reason, I would object to it.

THE COURT: Mr. Ignatowski or Mr. Smith.

MR. SMITH: Thank you, Your Honor.

A couple of points. One of the very issues in this case is what Owens-Corning knew and should have known.

Mr. Thomas who was the president of the company for many years testified that had he known, had somebody told him about some of these phrases that were read to him out of these documents, it would have raised a red flag that they would have done more, he would have been concerned and that the information was very important to him that he would have used in making certain decisions.

THE COURT: Haven't I already ruled on these documents in prior cases?

MR. SMITH: That is my second point, Your Honor, I believe you have.

I think in the last job Mr. Hoffman gave the
