

MPC Candidates Air Views of Board's Role

timidity to make what ad- needs and keep a han-

Hughes quoted a passage like," Hansen said, which stated, "Good teach- I do not mean that we ing does not take place in should not continue the cola vacuum, but in the el- lege transfer program, active and intangible thing that we should lower our called the climate of learn- academic standards," he said. "But I think we must broader the college's program to encourage young people to bring their aptitudes out into the open now so that we won't need to retrain them again in 20 or 25 years."
He urged closer contact between the college board and the people of the community to determine what achievements of the college courses are needed and to under present and past win full support of the public and the public's life.

Can it be claimed that the climate of learning at MPC is all that it should be? Hughes asked.
Because Hughes was now
of town on a business trip, his statement was read by a friend, Kenneth Ehlman.

Lockhart pointed to

lic and the public's life.
Improvements
Dr. Swigart, a Peninsula physician for 30 years, resided MPC's contrary because college-transfer program, the success of MPC graduates at four-year colleges, and the growing activation of MPC to top high school scholars.

He pointed to the strong faculty
teaching vocational program where the MPC has developed, especially in the area of data processing where, he said, it has pioneered in the state. He also mentioned the role of the college as a cultural center for the community, citing its popular lecture, music, art exhibit and movie series.

Confidence
As evidence of public confidence in the board, Lockhart noted that in his nine years as a school trustee the board had not lost a single election.

and high school districts and then at the college, the schools have never lost a tax or bond election. He attributed this to three factors: 1—the integrity of the board, 2—good superintendents, and 3—frank discussion of public matters in open meetings.

Russell Hansen of Pacific Grove, agent for Carpenters, Local 1323, and the fourth candidate for the board posits, said the board faces a challenge in the present unemployment situation in the nation in which 6.1 percent of the work force is without jobs.

He said most of these are in two age groups—those between 18 and 25, and those in their 30's. He said the reason the middle aged are now out of the labor force is that they did not complete their education 30 years ago and now as they are displaced by automation, many of them cannot be retrained. Phoma told newsmen to
