Continental Oil Company
Artesia, New Mexico

April 5, 1945

You may recall our discussion in Tulsa at which time you mentioned that the Continental Oil Company at Artesia had another tank which was almost an exact duplicate of the one in which the accident occurred. I believe you said it had been in similar service, i.e. as a gasoline blending tank, and that it also had a leaking bottom which would soon be repaired.

I mentioned this to Dr. Kehoe and he was quite interested saying that if we had sufficient advance notice there were certain experiments which he would like to conduct.

Please advise us in ample time when this tank is to be cleaned and repaired.
