Dear Bob,

Thank you for your forthright letter with its good wishes. I agree with you entirely that the best solution to a difficult situation is to have no expressed or implied arrangement between us for the present or future.

This leaves us still each devoted to getting this data integrated + published. I presume that you would look with favor on any attempts I might make to get some other support for my project, now that you are unable to back it financially.

This would imply specifically that you need not accept any responsibility for any opinions that I might express about the data, and that in turn I would give you full credit for the source of the data.

I am looking forward with great pleasure to our future relationship in Cincinnati and in our scientific endeavors, since each of us has so many ideas & opinions, & so much work, in common that we are supplementing. My relationship with you has been stimulating, profitable & helpful throughout. I am very grateful for your support & encouragement.

Sincerely,
KE
