

Fresh forces of the Indian army are manning the Assam frontier. They appeared calm, determined, mentally ready for the first clash with the enemy.

In reply to an inquiry from them as I passed, I said: "Get your men off the roads, out into the jungles, accustom them to living there, forget you ever had an army truck, camouflage your hideouts, study ways to ambush the other fellow, demand tommyguns, and mortars from ordnance. Rifle and machineguns are all right but tommyguns and mortars are much better and the Jap has plenty."

Doubled Strength For State Guard Tentative Plan

LOS ANGELES, May 12 (AP) — The governor's state guard advisory committee, after completing hearings here, at Sacramento and San Francisco, has agreed tentatively to recommend that the guard be increased from its present quota of 7,000 men to 15,000. Chairman Ray Lyman Wilbur said two committee members believed the army should be asked to assign non-combatant units of its military police force to guard facilities the federal government considers essential to military operations, war production and transportation.

"That would leave the state guard free," said Dr. Wilbur, "for duty at state-owned dams and at vital points, such as city, county and privately owned public utilities."
