During the second Mapping the World Public Policy Forum, National Geographic Society President and CEO Gary E. Knell convened a conversation between National Geographic Society Explorer-in-Residence and leader of the Pristine Seas project Dr. Enric Sala and Co-Chair of the bipartisan Senate Oceans Caucus Senator Sheldon Whitehouse of Rhode Island. Dr. Sala and Senator Whitehouse both provided insights into the connections between marine reserves, sustainable fishing practices, legislation focused on protecting our oceans, and the economy.

Please keep an eye out for an email from us with additional National Geographic resources on this issue. In the meantime, you can now download the ocean conservation fact & resource document we shared at the forum
