An American's Creed.

I BELIEVE IN THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA AS A GOVERNMENT OF THE PEOPLE, BY THE PEOPLE, FOR THE PEOPLE; WHOSE JUST POWERS ARE DERIVED FROM THE CONSENT OF THE GOVERNED; A DEMOCRACY IN A REPUBLIC; A SOVEREIGN NATION OF MANY SOVEREIGN STATES; A PERFECT UNION, ONE AND INSEPARABLE, ESTABLISHED UPON THOSE PRINCIPLES OF FREEDOM, EQUALITY, JUSTICE AND HUMANITY FOR WHICH AMERICAN PATRIOTS SACRIFICED THEIR LIVES AND FORTUNES. I THEREFORE BELIEVE IT IS MY DUTY TO MY COUNTRY TO LOVE IT, TO SUPPORT ITS CONSTITUTION, TO OBEY ITS LAWS, TO RESPECT ITS FLAG, AND TO DEFEND IT AGAINST ALL ENEMIES.

ON TO BERLIN Unconditional Surrender

TIME FOR THE GAS-MASK.
—Kirby in the New York World.

"We are all agreed that there can be no peace obtained by any kind of bargain or compromise with the Governments of the Central Empires, because we have dealt with them already and have seen them deal with other Governments that were parties to this struggle at Brest-Litovsk and Bucharest. They have convinced us that they are without honor and do not intend justice.

"They observed no covenants, accept no principle but force and their own interest. We cannot 'come to terms' with them. They have made it impossible. The German people must by this time be fully aware that we cannot accept the word of those who spread this war upon us. We do not think the same thoughts. We speak the same language of agreement."

—Woodrow Wilson.

Foch.

Grave-eyed he looks at us from printed page;
His face lean, worn and lined, intent, grim, sage;
Most soldierly, yet with the thinker's brow—
Soldier of France, and our great leader now!

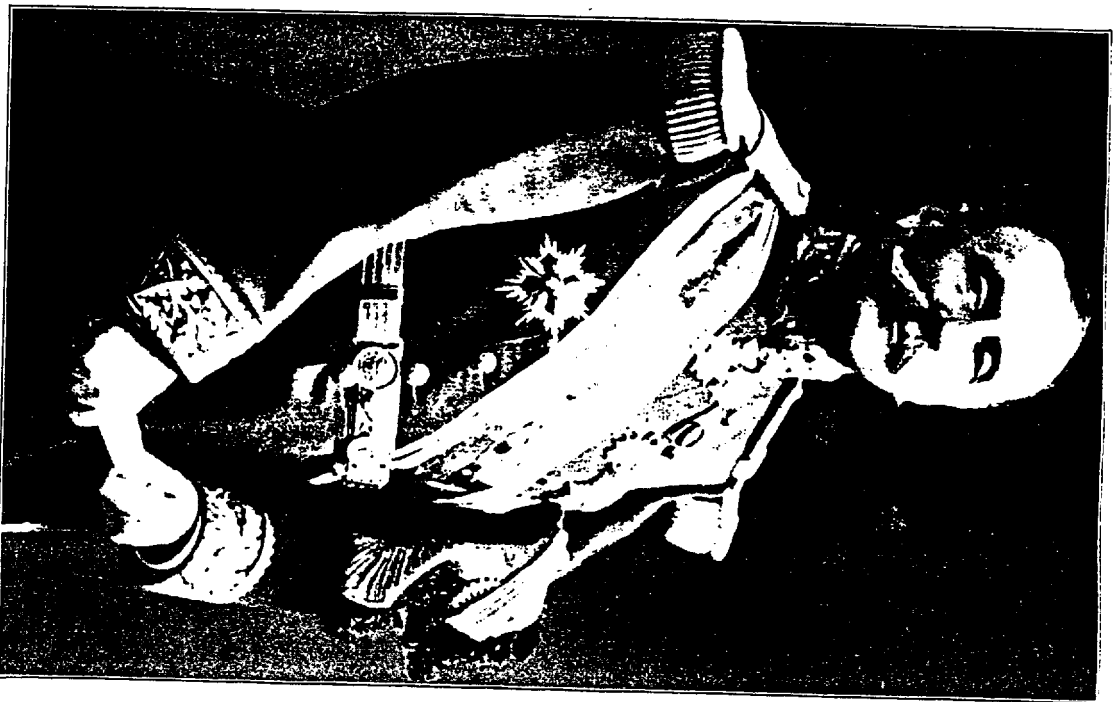

Not with the Prussian War Lord's bristling mien—
No air of pomp or prestige; but serene,
Unchanging confidence in him whose might
Springs from the sacred sense of being right!

No flow of windy words; no pageantry
Of arrogance and pride; the dignity
Of one whose plans spell victory, yet knows
A code of honor to perjured foes.

The son of a Republic, born to be
Its saving, selfless "Man of Destiny";
Strong in retreat, yet stronger in advance—
The brain, the hope, the driving Will of France!

Grave-eyed and sad he looks, as one whose part
To wear the scars of battle o'er his heart.
The wounds of France are his; her grief sublime,
And her untarnished glory for all time!

—Elizabeth Newport Hepburn, in N. Y. Times.

Censored Letters From the Front.

When Mrs. Malone got a letter from Pat, She started to read it aloud in her flat.

"Dear Mary," it started, "I can't tell you much; I'm somewhere in France, and I'm fighting the Dutch. I'm choking with news that I'd like to relate, But it's little a soldier's permitted to state. Do ye mind Red McPhee?—well, he fell in a ditch An' busted his arm, but I can't tell you which; An' Paddy O'Hara was caught in a flame An' rescued by—Faith, I can't tell you his name!

"Last night I woke up with a terrible pain; I thought for a while it would drive me insane. Oh, the sufferin' I had was most dreadful to bear—I'm sorry, my dear, but I can't tell you where. The doctor he gave me a pill, but I find It's contrary to rules to disclose here the kind. I've been to the dentist and had a tooth out; I'm sorry to leave you so shrouded in doubt, But the best I can say is that one tooth is gone — The censor won't let me inform you which one.

"I met a young fellow who knows you quite well, An' you know him, too, but his name I can't tell. He's Irish, red-headed, and there with the blarney; His folks knew your folks back home in Kiltarney."

"I'm sorry," said Mrs. Malone in her flat; "It's hard to make sense out of writin' like that; But I'll give him as good as he sends—that I will!" So she went right to work with her ink-well and quill, And she wrote: "I suppose ye're dead eager for news, You know when ye left here we were buying the shoes; Well, the baby has come, an' we're both doin' well. It's a—oh, but that's somethin' they won't let me tell."

Victorious Democracy

Marshal Foch Leads the Allied Armies on to Victory.

SIX months ago the great German offensive began. For weeks victory seemed about to perch upon the German banners. Today the Allied star is in the ascendency. Anxiety and encouragement, depression and joy, have succeeded each other since at dawn on March 21, the greatest battle of history began. It has been a period of almost incessant fighting and of bewildering changes.

The Allies knew they faced Germany's mightiest effort last March, but they stood unafraid. Released by the collapse of Russia as a belligerent power, vast numbers of German veterans had been rushed to the western front for the offensive, by which the Teutonic warlords dreamed that they might force upon the world a German peace.

Moving with a swiftness that carried concern to every Entente nation, the German forces swept over the British lines in Picardy and rolled westward until at last the British reached positions where they could stand at bay, and the French had come to form a living wall before the gray-clad host of the German Emperor.

Hardly had this rush been checked than the line between Lens and Ypres was attacked by the Germans, and again the British lines swayed backward. This advance went on until it reached the high ground southwest of Ypres, and then it, too, was stopped.

A pause followed. On May 27th the Germans suddenly broke through the French lines north of the Aisne and smashed southward until they reached the Marne over a wide front east of Chateau-Thierry.

No sooner had this drive been checked than a new assault was made by the Germans, who this time tried to break the French lines between Montdidier and Noyon and link up the Picardy and Marne sectors.

It was here the world had the first intimation that the Allied armies, which since late in March had been under command of Marshal Foch, had been pursuing a definite policy, and had conserved their strength until it might be used with good effect. The German attack came to a pause after six days of terrible fighting.

American forces had taken part in the final phases of the battle along the Marne, and had been instrumental in stopping the Germans at Chateau-Thierry. In this battle came the first notable contribution of America to the military fortunes of the Allies.

During the succeeding three or four weeks local actions from Soissons to Chateau-Thierry forced the Germans back from points of value. What was not known by the lay world was that, by these actions, Marshal Foch virtually forced the Germans to attack somewhere in the Marne region, where preparations were made for a new phase of the struggle.

On July 15th the Germans made a new drive from Chateau-Thierry far into the Champagne sector. No sooner had the news reached the world than the tidings came that the French, Italian and American lines subjected to assault were standing firmly.

On July 18th Marshal Foch launched an attack which has changed the whole situation. From Fontenoy, on the Aisne, west of Soissons, to Chateau-Thierry, on the Marne, the German lines were torn to pieces, and it was only by the most savage fighting that the Germans succeeded in saving their army in the Marne salient from disaster.

August 8th the French and British stormed the German lines in Picardy and sent the enemy reeling back toward the Somme. The next day the French crushed the German front south of Montdidier, and then, linking their lines with those of the British farther north, forced the invaders back to the eastward.

Less than two weeks later the German lines southwest of Arras gave way, and the forces holding them joined in a retreat which has now virtually reached the German lines, as they were on March 21st, from Arras to the Chemin des Dames.

Thus far the Allied drive might have been considered a defensive operation, but the work has not paused. German positions along the Hindenburg line, east of Arras, have been wrested from them, while farther south, near St. Quentin, the British have fought their way into the enemy's lines. The first American field army has obliterated the St. Mihiel salient and strengthened the line west of Verdun, and American shells are now falling in Metz.

Before the Allies there now stands the great lines constructed by the Germans during four years of warfare. These are not simple trenches, but vast field fortifications from the North Sea to the Swiss frontier. This general line of defensive positions has become known as the Hindenburg line, but to different sections of it have been given names from the old German epic of the Nibelungenlied. Thus the Wotan, Siegfried, Brun-

Death of Virgil H. Keyes.

Virgil H. Keyes, aged 34 years, was instantly killed in an automobile accident on Saturday night, September 21st. Mr. Keyes, with his wife and three children, was returning from Coshocton to their home at Dresden. As they were nearing Adams Mills their machine went over an embankment, and Mr. Keyes was instantly killed, the other members of the family escaping injury.

Mr. Keyes was an Armco employe and a member of the Armco Club. Funeral services were held September 24th at Dresden, and were attended by a large delegation of his fellow-workers. His wife is the 35th beneficiary under the Armco insurance plan.

Notes from the Blast Furnace Division

COLUMBUS, OHIO.

On September 16, 1918, Miss Ruth C. Purdin joined the Armco family as stenographer and secretary to Mr. Sweetser, succeeding Glen C. Brockmann, who resigned to accept a railroad position. We wish Miss Purdin all the success attainable.

We had the extreme pleasure, or misfortune, on September 23rd to say good-bye to five of our valued Serbian employes, namely, Druze Orlich, Stayan Bralic, Michael Barrach, Mela Popish and Sam Kengish. These men, along with approximately fifty others from Columbus, have joined the Serbians of the French army, and leave Columbus Sunday, September 28th, for New York. We hope they will all fulfil their promises and come back to us at the end of the present conflict.

On Friday, September 20th, the fifth party for colored employes was held at the old Colored "Y." building, and at that time announcement was made that the new Colored "Y." building would be open on September 30th, and it sure is some magnificent building. We wish in this issue to call attention to the record of one of our colored employes, who, starting January 1, 1918, in 240 consecutive days lost but four days' time, and in that time worked enough overtime to make up seven days. This man is Jacob F. Harris, Check No. 82, head ladle man on the West Pig machine. How is that for a record?

We have just received another very interesting letter from Virgil Lacey, now overseas. He also encloses a photo of himself, which easily proves that "that is the life." We also have heard

Zanesville Armco Notes.

Six More Zanesville Armco Men in the Service.

Since the last issue of the Armco Bulletin six more of the Zanesville Armco men have joined the colors. David Dixon, Clyde Monroe, Lewis Baker, Floyd Mercer, Frank L. Talley and Clyde C. Collins entrained for Camp Sherman on September 5th, making a total of fifty-four Zanesville Armco men in the service.

Armco Ladies Entertain.

A delightful program of vocal and instrumental music featured the ladies' monthly social meeting, which was held at the Armco Club Rooms on Thursday evening, September 12th. The meeting was in charge of Mesdames Harry Blackburn, A. W. Wymons and John Taylor. The October meeting will be in charge of Mesdames Geo. West, Edward Gardner and W. E. Thomas.

Armco Day at Red Cross Headquarters.

Monday, Armco Day at Red Cross headquarters, is one of the busiest days of the week. The attendance of the Armco ladies is increasing weekly, which is very gratifying to the Executive Committee.

Letter-Writing Night at the Club.

The addresses of our Armco soldier boys are now being kept at the Armco Club, and numerous letters are being mailed to our boys "over there" and at the training camps.

The Armco Band.

Manager Robert Ellsperman, of the Armco Band, has had the band members busy filling the numerous engagements he has booked. The big Labor Day parade was headed by the Armco band, and the band was a feature of the exercises attending the laying of the cornerstone of our new $60,000.00 Armory.

Thousands of people were present at the concert given by the band at Putnam Hill Park on Sunday, September 15th. The band was also in attendance at the Muskingum County Fair September 20th. The principal engagement booked is for October 1st for the services at the unveiling of the Sherman statue in the Aughman Memorial Park.

Baseball.

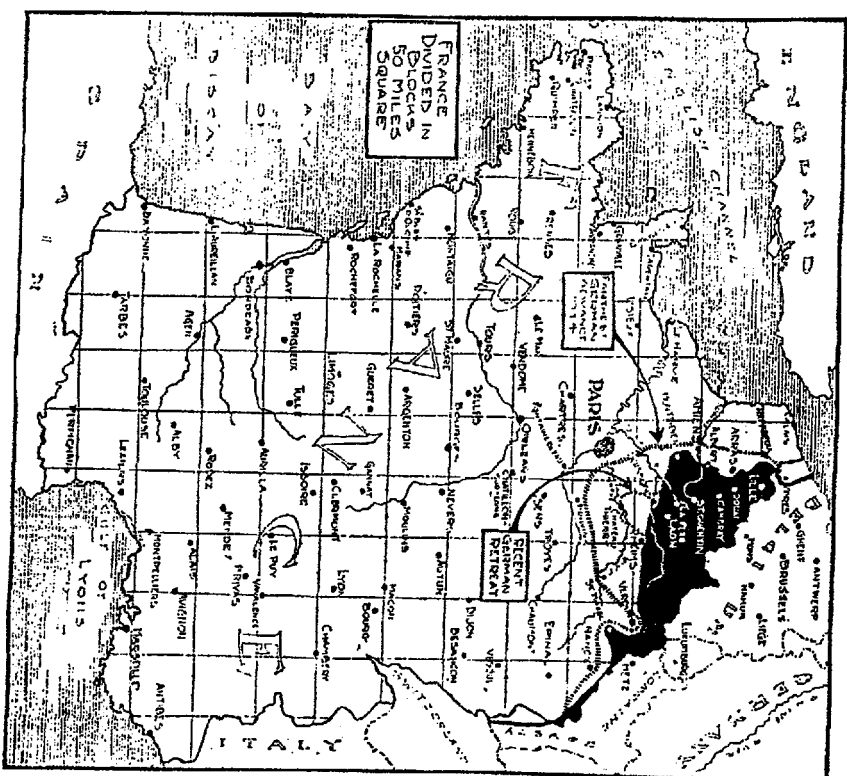

Former Armco baseball soldier boys who are now members of the Camp Sherman team were given a great reception by the local Armcos on Sunday, September 22nd, when the Camp Sherman team defeated the Zanesville Independents at Burton Park. Among the former Armco players were "Howdy" Caton, "Lefty" Howell and Ed. Holland, whose playing was up to the old-time Armco style. Howell pitched a fine game, and he and Caton were the batting stars, both getting a home run.

The race horses owned by Zanesville Armco men are making creditable showing in the horse-racing sports this year. "May Million," owned by L. L. Davis, won the $1,000 stakes at Marion, Mo., and at Bowling Green. "Hurry On," an Armco favorite, still showing fine form, making good in the numerous races in which he was entered this year. "Hurry On" was seen at the Muskingum County Fair week ending September 21st.

held and Kriemhilde lines have been mentioned in reports from the front.

Six months of the warfare of motion, however, has taught the Allies that a trench is no stronger than the troops that man it. In this fact lies the hope of the Entente nations.

Germany lost her chance to force peace upon the Allies before American armies entered the fight. Losses suffered by the Allies during the long battle have been more than doubly offset by the inflowing American legions. Germany's losses, on the other hand, cannot be made good. Hopes blasted, crack divisions broken up and seeming victories turned into defeats have sapped the morale of the German armies, which today are on the defensive everywhere.

The shaded section shows where the colossal conflict is raging. A large part of it is now in Allied hands.

The Flag.

Last year it was our heritage, the red and white and blue;
Our grandsires died to raise it, and our sires to keep it true;
We prayed we might be worthy of their memory, as we cast
In shimmering beauty to the wind the banner of our past.
But now—O God! our hearts are with our living and our dead!
Bone of our bone the white has grown, flesh of our flesh the red.
Our substance and our souls are pledged to keep it undefiled.
Last year it was our heritage—today it is our child.

scattered hits, while Hoffacker was more generous and gave 11. Score, Sheet Mill 3, Electricians 2.

The second game of the series was a shut-out for the Electricians. At no time was the outlook serious for the Sheet Mill, as only once did a man get to third base, and only four saw second safe. N. Lackoff, of the Sheet Mill, and C. Hoffacker, of the Electricians, also pitched this game. Hoffacker fanned 10, and N. Lackoff 8. Lackoff was charged with five hits, while Hoffacker had twice that amount.

The complete final averages will appear in next month's Armco Bulletin, together with the list of prize winners.

Armco Labor Day Ball Game.

Labor Day activities at Armco Field went off with a whirl, and a most enjoyable afternoon was spent by all who attended. The youths' running race, fat men's race, fat ladies' race, girls' and boys' three-legged race, tug-of-war, pie-eating and water-melon-eating contests were the cause of a great many laughs. Last, but not least, was the baseball game between the "Armco Whites" and "Armco Colored," with the "Whites" winners of the contest. Score, 4 to 1. The battery for the "Whites" was: Pitchers, N. Lackoff and C. Hoffacker; catchers, P. Lackoff and P. Welsh; for the "Colored:" Pitcher, Roston; catcher, Cain. R. Pond was the man with the big stick, as he got a two-bagger and a homer in four times at bat. Dewey and Roston, of the "Colored," each got a two-bagger. Manager Folks gave all his players a chance to get in the game, and he was not a bit afraid to use thirteen men in the contest. This "13" is the alibi for the "Colored" team's misfortune in losing the game. Anyway, not a moment of the game was tiresome, but was full of excitement and fun, as well as laughter. The "Armco Colored" team says it will prove to be the dark horse in some future game.

The Armco League teams played their last game of the 1918 season Saturday, September 7th, with the Sheet Mill team, winners of the Armco League pennant, and the Electricians second, which gave them the opportunity of playing the Verity Cup Series with the Pennant Winners.

The season of 1918 was one of the most successful in the career of Armco baseball. Every game throughout the entire season was hard fought for, and oceans of "Armco Spirit" was seen in all the games. Managers and players were always on the job, and, what is better yet, they were always there on time, and this was a great factor in the success of the season. Every game had to be played to decide who was going to be entitled to second place.

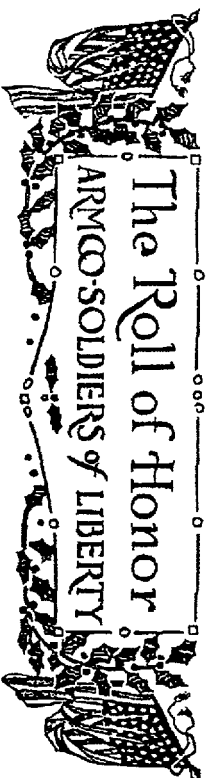

The game of August 31st was a fourteen-inning affair between the Steel Plant and the Sheet Mill, with the Sheet Mill on the heavy end, with a score of 5 to 4. J. Netter, of the "Steels," was the only man in this contest to get over a single, but John it a two-base hit. N. Lackoff was on the mound for the Sheet Mill and fanned nine men, while C. Martin did the twirling for the "Steels."

The second game was won by the Electricians, and they shut out the "Forgings." Hoffacker struck out thirteen, and F. Peak ten.

Sheet Mill got another taste of defeat Saturday, September 7th, as the Electricians trimmed them in great style. Score, Electricians 4, Sheet Mill 1.

The second game of the afternoon was between the Forging and Steel teams, and the Forgings won. Score, Forgings 8, Steel 4. F. Peak, of the Forgings, struck out 8, and C. Martin 4. Sheet Mills were easy victors in the Verity Cup Series, as they won two games straight from the Electricians. The games were played with a snap, and every player was giving his best. The first contest you could not pick the winner, as first one and then the other was in the lead. The series started September 14th, and the game went ten innings, with the Sheet Mill winning out in the tenth, with two men out and a man on second. A. Miller of the Sheet Mill, brought in the winning run with a single center field, which was the opportunity R. Glass was waiting for to send him in from second. N. Lackoff, of the Sheet Mill, and C. Hoffacker, of the Electricians, did the pitching, and "Red" missed 11, while "Nick" got 9; but Lackoff only allowed four Armco Association Club Notes.

Tennis.

The tennis tournament started out briskly, then took a jump, owing to the fact that many were away on their vacations. The men's doubles are down to the finals; Tobitt and Emerson to play Smith and Stanfill.

The women's singles are also down to the finals; Miss Hoover will play Miss Reynolds for the championship trophy. The Armco girls have not evinced a proper interest in the tournament. They do not respond more energetically next year, the women's singles will be dropped. Don't let this happen, ladies!

Play for the big cup in the men's singles was started on Saturday, September 28th. The big cup must be won three times to come individual property. There are sixteen entries in this event.

Billiards and Pool.

The billiard and pool players can get busy now and get in shape for a tournament the latter part of October or first part November.

This year the play will be governed by the eliminating process instead of the Round Robin process, and if a man does not appear when scheduled to play he will forfeit. You can send in your entries now to W. S. Daily, Armco Club, for straight billiards, three cushion, and pool. There will be three classes in billiards, and pool will be a handicap affair.

You will be classified and handicapped by the committee.

Chess and Checkers.

Chess and checker players can sharpen up their wits for a tournament in November. Come down and get in some practice and sign up.

Basket Ball.

It looks very doubtful whether or not we will have any basket ball this season, so many of the boys are with the colors, and more to go.

Dances.

Dances last year were far below the year previous, and will be worse this year. We must have some dances, and probably will give one dance a week, by alternating; that will be a dance every third week for each of the three groups—Armco Girls, Armco Married Folks and the Armco Club Dance.

The committees have not been appointed as yet. One thing is sure; this year there will be no refreshments served. Surely can help in that way; we do not come to eat, but come to dance.

Library.

At this season of the year one thinks of reading more. Your favorite magazine is here, and you can write that letter that you have been putting off. The club rooms are open Sunday evenings now; Sunday afternoon are from one until ten o'clock. You are always welcome.

The purpose of the first of these courses is to teach new, but experienced office help, our methods and requirements in the shortest time, rather than to have them take a large part of their time for several months in picking up these details in a hit-or-miss fashion.

The Apprenticeship Finishing Course is already under way. This course is for girls already holding office positions, and it occupies the first hour of each day.

Five distinct lines of work are taught by the most competent Company expert in those fields.

The length of this course will depend wholly upon individual effort. It will continue until a high degree of proficiency has been obtained.

The Regular Apprenticeship Course in office training is for applicants without any office training, and it fits them thoroughly for secretarial duties.

This course includes:

Business English	Stenography (optional)
Penmanship	Mailing, Telegrams and
Spelling (Armco vocabulary)	Stamps
Correspondence	Business Arithmetic
Filing and Indexing	Accounting (optional)
Transcribing	Business Law
Care of dictaphone and type-writer	Armco Official Personnel
	Plant and Office Geography.

During their apprenticeship these students will give half of their time to school work, and half to such office work as may be assigned by the General Office Manager.

Americanization Classes.

Fifteen classes of foreigners have been organized, and are meeting twice a week for instruction in English. These classes are under the supervision of Miss Margaret Reisch, who has recently come to the Armco School from Pittsburgh, her home, where she has had valuable experience teaching in the American Bridge Company's School for Foreigners. Miss Reisch will supervise the English classes for men until they are well under way. Later she will organize classes for foreign-born women.

In providing classes for the non-English-speaking women, The American Rolling Mill Company is taking another step in advance of any other company. So far as we know, no other industrial concern in the United States is providing free classes for foreign-born women.

Armco School opened its doors on September 4th, and since that time it has been a very busy place. The building has been thoroughly refurnished; new furniture has been installed; drafting room, electrical, physical and chemical laboratory equipment has been provided, and every step has been taken to enable Armco School to maintain the "Armco" reputation.

Teaching Staff.

The following teaching staff has been selected, largely from amongst the experts in the different departments of the plant:

D. M. Strickland—Shop Mathematics and English for Foreigners.

J. M. Rife—English for Foreigners.

J. E. Carey—English for Foreigners and Algebra.

W. E. Miller—American Government.

E. N. Millan—Drafting and Blue-Print Reading.

A. Steed—Drafting.

II. C. Barnes—Advanced Drafting.

J. R. Barry—Apprentice Shop Instructor.

R. O. Griffiths—Business English.

Dora Dietz—Business English.

Mrs. J. Cunningham—Transcribing.

Fmma Werley—Correspondence and Spelling.

L. E. Kittle—Filing.

Leo Reinhartz—Metallurgy.

A. J. Sheldon—Metallurgy, Heat Treatment, Chemistry.

Physics.

C. E. Strait—Apprentice Supervisor and Machine Shop Practice.

W. P. Wood—Cost Accounting.

W. M. Jones—Shorthand and Typewriting.

Classes in the above subjects are already under way.

Office Training Courses.

For several years there has been a growing demand for some systematic training for office girls, and the organization of our Educational Department has made it possible to meet this demand.

Plans have been made to meet this need by offering three types of training for three classes of office employees:

1. An Intensive Training Course.
2. An Apprenticeship Finishing Course.
3. A Regular Apprenticeship Course.

There are other forms of treatment for this condition, such as soaking the feet for five or ten minutes daily in a solution made by dissolving a 5-grain potassium permanganate tablet in a pint of water, or in ordinary hot cider vinegar, for twenty or thirty minutes each day. Powdered alum dusted in the shoes and socks sometimes helps, as it toughens the outer layer of skin, thus reducing the sweating.

In extreme cases the socks should be soaked in a solution made by dropping a bichloride tablet in a quart of water before washing. The shoes may be painted with a 10 per cent. solution of salicylic acid and alcohol, and the feet may also be given a coating of the same solution after they have been washed and dried. This process, which is really one of disinfecting, should be repeated if one application does not stop the sweating.

Put on clean socks every day; see that they are not too tight and that they have no holes in them. Woolen socks are best.

Nails.—The toe-nails should be trimmed every ten days or two weeks, and they should be cut square across to prevent the nails from growing into the flesh at the edges. If the nails become thick and clubby, they should be pared.

If you have ingrowing toe-nails, trim them as above, cut a V-shaped piece in the middle of the end of the nail, and scrape the nail as thin as possible from the point of the V back toward the flesh. Soak the feet in hot water each night, and push the flesh back from the sides of the nail, if possible working a piece of cotton or a piece of adhesive plaster underneath the edge of the nail where it has started to grow in. Be very careful not to cut the toe-nail close enough to cause bleeding, as this may give rise to blood poisoning. Paint the inflamed tissue with tincture of chloride of iron, which will cause it to shrink.

An important factor in the care of the feet is cleanliness. They should be given a bath at least once each day in tepid water and a little mild soap. If this is not done, dirt, broken-down epithelium, sweat, etc., accumulate and undergo putrefactive changes through the action of harmful bacteria, irritating the skin and causing it to break down with the formation of abrasions, blisters or fissures, through which the germs of septicemia or blood poisoning, or pus-producing organisms may enter the system. Dry the feet thoroughly, especially between the toes, and apply a good foot powder, as previously suggested. No great amount of powder is required at a time, but the whole surface of the foot should be covered with a greater amount sifted between the toes.

The sensation of heat or irritation and nervousness often following a hard day's work, breaking one's rest, is many times relieved by a general bath or by bathing just the feet.

H. H. Smith,
Chief Surgeon.

Salicylic acid	11 parts.
Cannibus Indica	2 "
Alcohol	10 "
Flexible Collodion enough to make	100 "
Or the following corn salve may be used:
Salicylic Acid	40 parts.
Vaseline	30 "
Lanolin	30 "

After applying, cover with zinc oxide adhesive, and repeat the process each night, previously removing any plaster from the foot. On the fourth or fifth night the corn should present a dead, whitish appearance, when it should be loosened by working under the edge of the corn with the back of a point of a knife which has been sterilized, gradually working all the way around it. When it is loosened, lift the corn out, being careful not to cut its attachments or prolongations into the flesh. If the attachments are cut and not pulled out, the return of the corn is almost certain. In the case of a large, hard corn, the process may have to extend over six or eight nights. Sometimes it is advisable to trim away the hard part so the medicine can strike the roots better. Never attempt to remove the corn until it appears dead and can be lifted from the foot readily.

If the corn is not entirely removed, after a few days repeat the treatment. But please remember that no corn or callosus can be permanently gotten rid of unless the cause, such as ill-fitting shoes, etc., which produces them, is removed.

Fissures.—Fissure, or cracking of the skin between the toes, is usually relieved by one or two applications of a good foot powder, or by touching the fissure with a silver nitrate stick. There is, however, a form of fissure which is caused by eczema, which requires an entirely different form of treatment—that is, an eczematous treatment, which should be determined by a physician.

Bromodrosis.—Bromodrosis, commonly known as sweating or stinking feet, is best treated as follows:

Bathe the feet and carefully dry the whole affected surface. Then paint over it with a cotton swab dipped in a 10 per cent. solution of formaldehyde. Allow this solution to dry on the affected part, but if the feet begin to burn, wash the excess of the solution off. Be careful not to apply solution over any abrasion or fissure. If you do, you will experience a severe pain, which may be relieved by an application of olive oil or vaseline.

The formaldehyde solution hardens the superficial layer of the skin, reduces the amount and alters the character of the secretion of the offending sweat glands. During the treatment the feet should be washed at least twice each day, and some good foot powder, such as three parts salicylic acid, ten parts of powdered starch and eighty-seven parts of talcum powder, should be dusted in the shoes and socks. This acts as an antiseptic, and protects the surface of the feet.

FEET

Since the outbreak of the world war much has been said and written about the proper kind of shoes and the care of the soldier's feet, but scarcely anything has been said or done pertaining to the feet of our great industrial army whose work is so important at this time.

In the June Bulletin I called your attention to some of the common causes of feet trouble—improperly fitted shoes, socks with holes in them, socks that wrinkle or are too small, dirt in the shoes, or dirty socks. These conditions cause corns, bunions, callouses, blisters, ingrowing nails and other ailments of the feet. If you have already acquired any of these ailments, I am sure the following suggestions will help correct them if you will only heed them:

Bunions.—Bunions are enlarged bursal sacks over the joints, which often become inflamed. These usually occur over the second joint of the great toe, and less often on the third joint of the little toe. The joint sometimes undergoes inflammatory changes. These are caused by shoes which are not only too narrow, but built on a pointed "last," which forces the great and little toes in toward the center. Bunions are not only very painful, but they accompany a deformity which weakens the foot and materially decreases a man's efficiency.

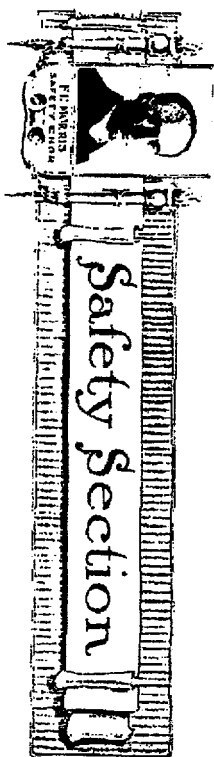

Treatment for bunions is surgical; but rest, application of heat or cold (depending on the condition), painting with iodine, or the use of a bunion pad will give temporary relief, but permanent relief can only be obtained by removing the causative factors. Best consult your family physician.

Blisters.—In case the feet become blistered, a physician should be consulted; but if this is not convenient, open the blister with the point of a needle or a knife blade which has been sterilized either by dipping it in carbolic acid and alcohol or by boiling. Then gently press out all of the contents of the blister, being careful not to tear away the raised skin or cuticle. Cover the blistered or reddened surface around it with zinc oxide adhesive plaster, first drying the skin and heating the plaster by holding a lighted match close to the sticky side until small bubbles appear. Then press the plaster down smoothly over the blister. In case the skin has been torn off, causing an abrasion, and no adhesive plaster is at hand, paint it with a 5 per cent. solution of chromic or picric acid (such as is used in the treatment of burns), and apply a sterile bandage.

Corns.—Corns, as I have said before, are caused by improperly fitted shoes, and the best way to remove them after they have formed is as follows:

Wash the feet thoroughly at bed-time, and soak in warm soapsuds for about ten minutes. After drying, paint the corn and the tissues for about an eighth of an inch around it with some good corn plaster. The following is a very good formula:

Boys Will Be Boys.

When a man arrives at home after a hard day's work at the mill, if there is one thing that he does not want to hear, it is, "Well, John, our Billy has been a bad boy today, and I'll have to spank you to spank him."

There are several reasons why we don't like that job; one of them is because it hurts us also—not in the same place, however. One afternoon several weeks ago an Armo man's wife discovered her eldest boy away up in the topmost branches of a tall elm tree, where he was giving a first-class imitation of a monkey in a tail, and when her husband came home that evening she questioned him to punish Billy, so that he would never take such foolish chances again.

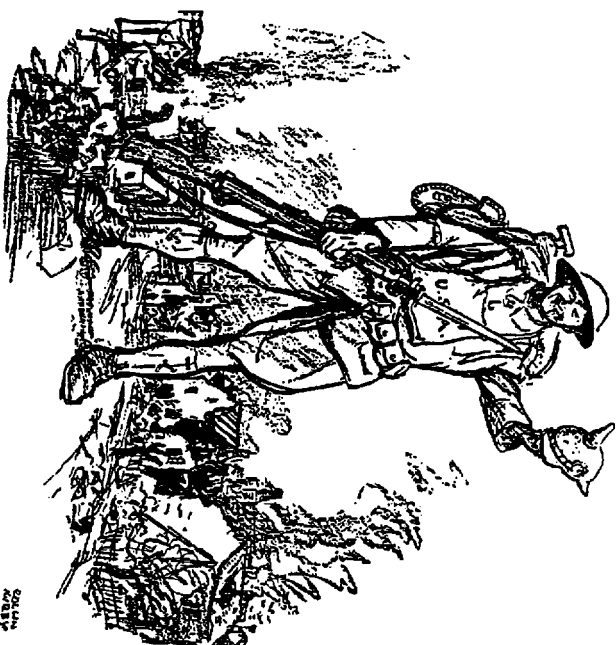

After supper John lighted his pipe and went out onto the porch to think it over, while the wife washed the dishes. When he joined him later he said: "Well, Mary, I'll lick the fellow responsible for Billy's tricks if you'll produce him." "Why, mom do you mean, John?" asked his wife. "My grandfather," replied. "You see it's this way, Mary: I used to climb trees when I was a kid, and so did my father when he was a boy; so, of course, it comes natural to our Billy. I have never talked to him out how foolish such tricks are, but I will; and let's don't whip him 'till we have given him every chance." Billy's mother agreed, of course, and Billy hasn't climbed a tree since.

When you've figured it all out you'll find that that is just the reason why this foolish habit of carelessness has such a firm grip on all of us; it's because we never learned to "play safe" when we're boys, and when we grow up and go to work in the mill all our habits, good as well as bad, are pretty well fixed, we travel grooves. In other words, we are "set" in our ways, and it's by a big effort that we can shake off the habit of carelessness and put a safe habit in its place.

We can't merely say, "After this I'll take no chances;" we've got to work hard at it constantly until it is more natural for us to work safely than it is for us to blindly take chances. Then, and then only, will we have the safety habit. It is the best asset a mill man can have. It not only increases his chances of staying the job every day, but it will also increase his efficiency, improve his chances for advancement, and it will relieve his wife from a big load of anxiety.

THE NATIONAL INTEREST DEPT.

The Armco Garden Exhibit.

About a year ago the first Armco Garden Exhibit was opened to the public in the Armco Club Rooms. Here were shown vegetables, both fresh and canned, raised in the Armco War Gardens by Armco people. Prizes to the amount of $200.00 were given. It was such a success that another exhibition was held this year. As the Armco Club Rooms are in almost constant use by Red Cross workers, the first floor of the Masonic Temple was obtained for the show room. So much interest was aroused by this display of vegetables that a request was made by the Agriculture Division of the Chamber of Commerce of the city that it be held again over Saturday in order that the farmers in this vicinity might have an opportunity to see it. This was done, and on Saturday night a number of exhibits were auctioned off. The sixty-dollar dollars realized were donated to the Red Cross.

Battle Hymn of the Republic

By Julia Ward Howe.

Mine eyes have seen the glory
Of the coming of the Lord;
He is trampling out the vintage
Where the grapes of wrath are stored;
He hath loosed the fateful lightning
Of his terrible swift sword;
His truth is marching on.

I have seen Him in the watch-fire
Of a hundred circling camps;
They have builded Him an altar
In the evening dews and damps
I can read His righteous sentence
By the dim and flaring lamps;
His day is marching on.

I have read a fiery gospel,
Writ in burnished rows of steel;
"As ye deal with my contemners,
So with you my grace shall deal;
Let the Hero, born of women,
Crush the serpent with his heel,
Since God is marching on."

He hath sounded forth the trumpet
That shall never call retreat;
He is sifting out the hearts of men
Before His judgment-seat;
Oh, be swift, my soul, to answer Him;
Be jubilant, my feet!
Our God is marching on.

In the beauty of the lilies
Christ was born across the sea,
With a glory in his bosom
That transfigures you and me;
As He died to make men holy,
Let us die to make men free,
While God is marching on.

We've Got to Do What We Can.

Said Michael O'Leary to Patrick McCreery,

"You sure make me weary the way that you work;
Last week you lost one day, and this week—on Monday—
You laid off completely. Bedad, ye're a shirk!"

Said Patrick McCreery to Michael O'Leary,

"Well, what if I did?—and I did, it is true—
If I grab off a play-day or two around pay-day,
I guess it's my business and nuthin' to you!"

Said Michael O'Leary to Patrick McCreery,

"Me son is a soldier who's fightin' in France;
He's got to have trifies like helmets and rifles,
Or else with the Boches he won't stand a chance.

He needs to have batteries—guns that'll shatter his Enemy's trenches before an attack—

And motors to carry his camp commissary,
And ships that'll bring him the things he may lack.

"But when you are shirkin' yer job, or ain't workin',
You're holdin' him up on his arms and supplies;
For—get this straight, neighbor—when you slack your labor

You're doin' more harm than a half dozen spies.
Ther's need for the keenest of work—each machinist
And fireman and blacksmith should stick to his job

In war-time conditions to make the munitions
To help smash the Kaiser and all of his mob.

"And so," said O'Leary, "your ways make me weary;
You throw down me son as he fights over there.
To loaf is a bum thing—you bet it means something

To me when you're slackin' from doin' your share!"

Said Patrick McCreery to Michael O'Leary,
"I never have thought of it that way before;
But now that I see it, I sure will agree it

Ain't me that'll loaf on the job any more!"

—American Machinist.

Sturdy Stock.

BY HENRY A. McANARNEY.

There have been more than 2,000,000 sturdy men between the ages of 21 and 31 withdrawn from productive industries in the last year—men whose positions cannot be filled by women. And these figures are for the United States alone. They do not take into account the limitation of the labor supply through the natural cessation of immigration, because of the amalgamation of the immigrant class with the fighting forces of Europe.

The United States must recoup the industrial deficit of the entire world—a herculean undertaking in normal times; titanic in the present day. Yet a task which the country faces with calm assurance of accomplishment.

The nation has faith in the loyalty, the patriotism and the capacity of its reserve working forces to overcome the gigantic barriers that obstruct the way. The time has come when that faith must be justified.

The nation's fighting forces have proved their mettle on the battlefield overseas; demonstrated it to the confusion of the sneering cynics at home; to the bewilderment of the Prussian military strategists—those superman mathematicians who riddled with diagrams and drivel, maps and mucklage, ink and idioecy, the plan of the United States to land an army of a million fighting men on European soil in fewer than five years.

Those "masters of the arts of war" had put it down in figures that this could not be done; every fact of history denied its possibility. They made merry over the mere suggestion. A contemptuous shrug of the shoulders dismissed the United States as a factor in the war.

But the United States did that—and more. In one year there were a million and a half Americans fighting on the western front of France.

That was a triumphant thrusting aside of "facts and figures," and a new scale for guiding scientific calculation. A successful climax to a stupendous undertaking.

Now the working men and women of the country are called upon to duplicate in the field of industry the valor and the courage that our troops have shown on the field of battle.

Our workers are courageous. They know that the war must be won. They realize that their forces of will and their indomitable determination are the guardians of universal liberty. They are confronted by the supreme obligation of supporting our magnificent fighting forces overseas with munitions and supplies of war, of feeding the nation's Allies, of keeping the whole machinery of life in motion.

Shall they fulfil that supreme obligation voluntarily and vigorously?

They shall: for they come of the sturdy stock that stand by their guns when their country calls.

In the suffering and anguish which we have endured, we find solace in the thought that your heart goes out to us. Your Bulletin expresses it. We, as the only Roumanian daily in this country, wish in behalf of the Roumanian populace to express our most sincere and heartmost thanks.

We feel that in your expression you have symbolized the true spirit which pervades this glorious country.

We are indeed grateful.

Sincerely,
N. Nesting, Manager.

He Went to the Relief of "Chinese" Gordon.

This is a photograph of our friend, Joe Holland, "Blue Furnace" operator, when he was Corporal Joseph Holland, 38th Regiment, 1st Battalion, South Staffordshire, stationed at Curragh Camp, County Kildare, Ireland, in 1879.

The story of his life reads like a novel, and takes one back to a time that seems like the long ago.

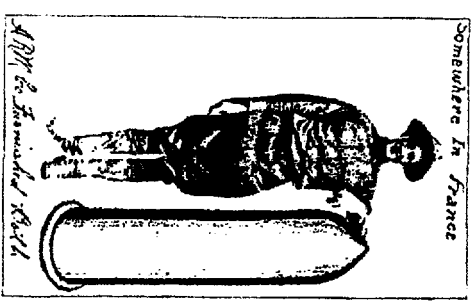

Joseph Holland volunteered for service in South Africa for the Zulu war. Following this service he was sent to Malta, and from there ordered to Egypt at the time England declared war on that country. He was among the first soldiers to land after the bombardment of Alexandria, and was present at the battle of Tel el Kebir. From there he was sent on to Cairo with the army of occupation. When war broke out in the Soudan he was with the troops ordered up the river Nile to the relief of "Chinese Gordon." They crossed the desert, and were present at the battle of El Teb and Tarnie. Tarnie is in a very warm climate, and the troops suffered greatly from lack of water.

After the war was over Sergeant Holland—for he was now sergeant—was ordered back to Malta again. The service he had rendered old England had been long and arduous, and he, long with most of his comrades, wanted to go home. As he had little bank account, he purchased his discharge, paying £18 or it, and went to England.

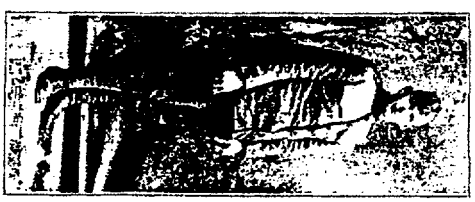

This was in 1884. In 1885 he came to America, and has lived here ever since, filled with the spirit of his adopted country. He was a corporal in the Ohio National Guard (Company H, 4th Regiment), and holds an honorable discharge signed by William McKinley, who was then Governor of Ohio.

Notes from Armco Boys With the Colors.

Arthur Dowell has rejoined his company in France. At the time this company left, Dowell was confined to the hospital.

H. V. Mercer, U. S. Naval Training Station, Great Lakes, Ill., writes on August 20th, 1918:

"I know these are busy times at Armco, and it is certainly a pleasure to know how the Sheet Mill men have gone into the other departments to work. That, to me, is proof that the men do feel their responsibility in helping to win, and when everybody feels that it is his responsibility, the war will be as good as won."

Corporal James Kovacs says they have the Hun on the run. May they keep him there!

Joseph Busenlechner, who is in training at the Officers' Camp, Fort Benjamin Harrison, has been promoted to Corporal. Mont Shugr, Raymond H. Barr, Marvin Harris and Wm. J. J. Miles have arrived safely overseas.

Roscoe Thacher has been enjoying a short furlough with friends and relatives.

F. R. Hubbard is receiving a lion's share of good things. He has been promoted to Sergeant, and has also qualified as sharpshooter at the Peekskill Rifle Range.

Homer Rich, of Ft. Thomas, is visiting relatives and friends. Twenty-five men from John Sites' company have been chosen to operate machine guns for the protection of the U. S. Shop from the German airplanes. Sites is finding his work very interesting, and is enthusiastic about the reception the twenty-five are planning for the Boche when their chance comes.

Sergeant John H. Drake says the boys are being treated "just like kings" by the French. They have nothing more to wish for.

DePew Dutcher has been made Sergeant. Fred Hounshell has reached England safely.

Leon Granger is Acting Corporal of an automatic rifle squad. This squad consists of one Corporal, two automatic riflemen and four ammunition carriers.

Captain A. G. Goldsmith has been appointed Secretary of the General Staff, 83rd Div., American E. F.

Bernard Drait is in the aviation section of the Navy. He enjoys his work very much, and says that Uncle Sam takes the best of care of them.

A LETTER FROM BRAZIL. The American Rolling Mill Co.

Letter No. 824.
Rio De Janeiro,
The American Rolling Mill Co.,
Middletown, Ohio.
July 26, 1918.

Armco Incentive:

Armco Insignia for Term of Service.

Gentlemen:—

I duly received your notice to the effect that I have been awarded the above insignia in recognition of the services which I have rendered during the first term (five years) of my affiliation with The American Rolling Mill Company.

This emblem, besides symbolizing a most touching distinction bestowed upon my humble person, represents the first etape of a career to which I have devoted a period of time never attained in any of the other branches of activity with which I have been previously connected. Hence, the high esteem with which the insignia in question will be received and kept by the writer.

Before ending, I wish to express my gratitude to Mr. Verity and the other officers of the Company, to whose kindness and guidance much of my perseverance with Armco is owed. Yours gratefully,

Attention of Mr. Charles R. Hook,

Gentlemen:—

Great credit is due you.

No greater tribute can we offer at this time than by saying that "Armco" stands for true-blue Americans.

It must have indeed been a wonderful inspiration that prompted you to dedicate a special number to our people.

It is just such moral support that makes for Democracy. It is just such sympathy that makes for the betterment of human mankind.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

Patriotic Mass Meeting.

A splendid Patriotic Mass Meeting for Armco men, under the auspices of the U. S. Emergency Fleet Corporation, was held in the Sory Opera House Sunday morning, September 23rd. The speakers were H. I. Heals, of New York City; Private Stackhouse, of the 85th Canadian Highlanders, and Captain P. J. Moran, who has served in the British army for twenty-one years, and is one of the five officers left of the 120,000 officers and men of the first British army that was put in France.

Private Stackhouse made a hit with his audience by announcing, "I didn't lose my leg; I gave it to my country, and I'm proud of it." He told of his experiences in the trenches. "But they're giving it to them," he added, "Who is giving it to them? The men in the shops are the ones who are keeping the boys in the trenches; and if they weren't in the trenches, where would you be?"

Captain Moran's story was that of one who had seen war in all its phases. He had made investigation of the German army in puzzled the governments of the world at that time. He explained that it is up to America to win the war. Belgium had held out long enough for France to get troops to the front. France had held the Hun 'till England was in. Italy had come to their aid, and they all had held on 'till America arrived, but there was no one left to help us. We will have to finish the fight. "But," he added, amid thundering applause, "what it takes to win the fight, relieve me, your Uncle Sam has got!"

Monday our distinguished visitors spoke in various departments in both the Central and East Side Works.

The Fourth Liberty Loan.

Before this number reaches you, every Armco man will have come to the aid of his country and backed up the boys "over there" by investing in bonds of the Fourth Liberty Loan. This is the largest single loan ever made by any government since the beginning of time.

To equal our quota we will have to double the amount previously purchased. Middletown has a right to be proud of its record in every previous campaign. "Lest we forget," here it is:

Campaign.	Quota.	Total.
First Liberty Loan.....	$350,000.00	$1,057,800.00
First Red Cross War Fund...	20,000.00	113,630.00
Soldiers' Library	1,000.00	1,320.50
Second Liberty Loan.....	454,000.00	1,182,250.00
Y. M. C. A. War Fund.....	25,000.00	33,989.44
Food Conservation	95.6% of housewives sign pledges	11,484.00
Red Cross Mem's'p. (individuals)	3,000.00	981,300.00
Third Liberty Loan.....	418,500.00	129,638.00
Second Red Cross War Fund..	40,000.00

Warrie Lykins, Marvin Clark, Amos Straws, Harry Neal, Robert Baxter, Paul V. Reinartz and John Kovacing have been appointed Corporals.

Lieut. H. B. Jones had the misfortune to injure one of his eyes. Because of this, he was not permitted to go with his company when they left for overseas duty. Jones has worked faithfully, and he is feeling his disappointment keenly.

Corporal Clyde Burgess is climbing the ladder of success rapidly. He is now a Sergeant.

A letter from Arthur Kunz, dated August 14th, tells of a wonderful reception tendered the troops he is with in Italy.

A. C. Braun, Company G, 29th Engineers, returned safely to camp at Camp Meyer, Virginia, after getting married here. Said he felt tough on the morning of his return, but was one of twelve out of one hundred and seventy who failed to get A. W. O. L. after his name.

Sergeant H. Davies was on the firing line on August 7th, quiet sector. He says the army has some tall liars. Every man says that all the shells fall only one hundred meters away from him, and he knows they are liars because all the shells missed him by only one hundred meters. He receives the Armco Bulletin regularly, and is glad to know Armco is making such a splendid showing.

All Armco men and women sympathize with Miss Elizabeth Thiel, of the Purchasing Department, and her brother, Earnest Thiel, an Armco soldier, serving in France with the Rainbow Division, in the loss of their brother, Corporal Fred Thiel, who made the supreme sacrifice on the field of honor in France.

Virgil App is now first sergeant in his company, so we learn from Dan Corson.

All Armco men and women were delighted to hear that Alan G. Goldsmith had been promoted to the rank of major on the general staff. This is a distinctive honor to this Armco boy, who has so rapidly climbed up the military ladder. He is the first Middletown boy to become a major in the great war.

Major Goldsmith attended Officers' Training Camp at Fort Benjamin Harrison two years ago, and was a member of General Glenn's staff at Camp Sherman. In June of this year he sailed with General Glenn for France.

Our Letters From France.

If a prince should roll up in his carriage of four
And loss a tiara inside of my door,
I should leave it just where it was put:

For down the long street I am watching the man
Who brings more than princes and carriages can,
Tho' he's coming but slowly, a-foot.

Oh, the day is a dance,
And the night is a song,
When the letter from France
Brings its music along.

Oh, lad of my loving, far over the sea,
Do you know what a letter is, coming to me?
In the desert of life, 'tis a green-growing tree;
In the prison of Here, 'tis the opening key:
'Tis the light-house of Hope in a darkening sea.

Oh, man with the mail-bag, why worry me so?
Your pace is so patient, your coming so slow;
You could hurry a bit if you'd try!

Or is it—oh, is it—you've nothing today,
And you're going right by, never looking my way,
As you shrink from the look in my eye?

Oh, I try to be cheery,
I try to be strong;
But days are so dreary,
And nights are so long!

Unless there's a letter still coming to me—
The one he is writing (still touching his knee):
The one he has sent, which is sailing the sea,
And the one which the postman (all grinning with glee
As I rush out to meet him) is bringing to me!
(Courtesy Mrs. Wm. W. Yennawine, New York City, who has a boy "over there.")

Dear Sir:

I am pleased to acknowledge receipt of my Arnco insignia ring, which I received yesterday, and I want to say that I am proud to wear a ring which represents the quality and good spirit such as that of the Arnco.

The packages, letters and Arnco Bulletin which I receive are not only a comfort, but give one confidence to know that the people at home are with him and all working with but one aim—to make the world a safe place to live in.

I take every opportunity to tell others about Arnco, and I find quite a few of the boys that have heard of it, and several of them that used to work there.

I have now been in the Signal School about two weeks, and I expect to go to Hampton Roads by September 1st to complete my schooling.

With many thanks for the ring and other things, and a deep appreciation for the interest the Arnco takes in all its employes,
I am,
Yours very truly,
J. R. Hensey.

Gentlemen:

Just received my Armco Service Ring, and I am very much pleased with it. When the boys see this ring and the packages you have been sending me they say, "That must be some Company," and I tell them, "Believe me, boy, that is some Company." Then I tell them of our Armco Association, and the many advantages and opportunities given the men by the Company, and I can always get plenty of fellows to listen.

We are making rather elaborate preparations for the Fourth and I suppose there will be quite a celebration. If possible, I mean to spend tomorrow in Louisville. I am now on special duty at the Field Artillery Headquarters, and like it very well. Nearly every man that came at the time I did has been transferred to Louisiana or Georgia. It looks very much as if I am to spend the balance of my army life here. Stenographers seem to be the scarce article around here.

Have not yet had any pictures made. Expect to have some made soon and will send you one for the Bulletin.

Have some work on hand, so must stop for this time.

Robert Barber,

Mr. Geo. M. Verity, President,

American Rolling Mill Company,
Middletown, Ohio.

June 30, 1918.

Dear Sir:

I wish to write and thank you, together with the Armco organization, for the Armco ring which I received several days ago. It is a present that I prize very highly now, and after the ring is over with it shall become of still more value to me. The ring in itself is a wonderful present, but the thought of the giver is of far more worth to me than the present. It is a mighty fine feeling to a man in the service to know that the "folks back home" are thinking of him and backing him up.

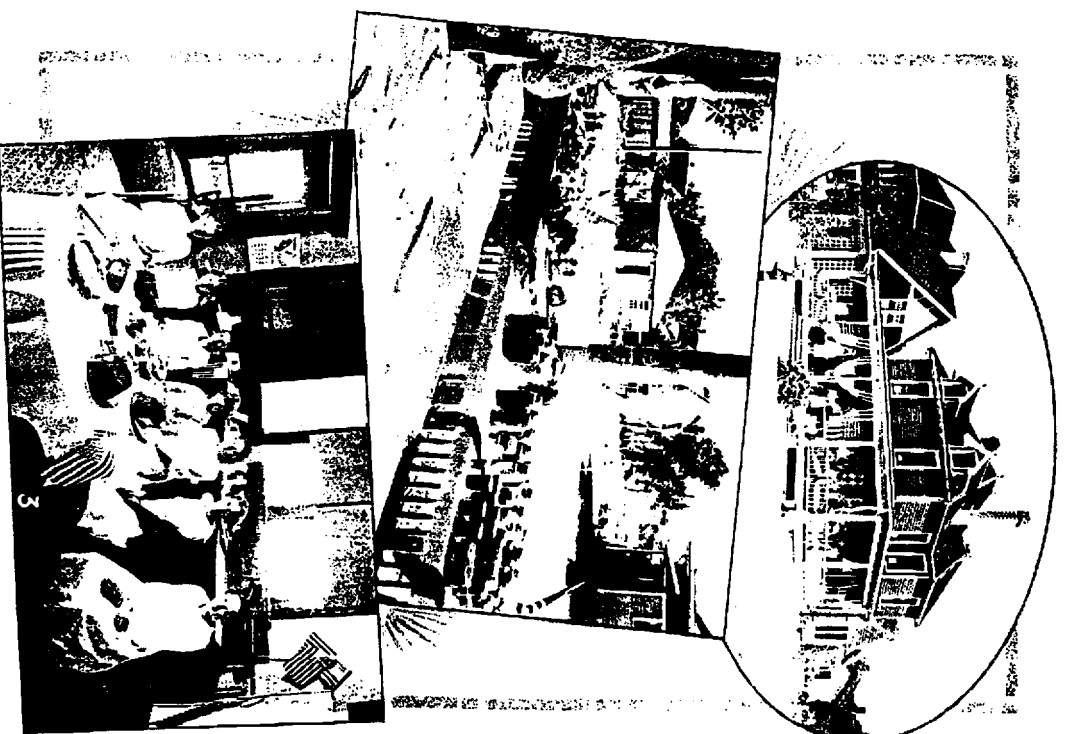

Next Saturday I shall graduate from Stevens Institute, where the Navy has been giving me a course in steam engineering, and I expect to make my first trip to the "other side" in about three weeks. If all goes well I shall receive a commission as an Ensign in the Naval Reserve, and I shall be assigned to engineering duties. This commission will be given to me after I have made my first trip across the waters.

With best regards to the entire Armco family, I remain,
Yours respectfully,

J. B. Whitlock.

Croix de Guerre

Letters have come from the Armco boys in Section 646 as late as August 31st. They are in the center of activities, and are all enjoying splendid health. Al Preyer, who was in a base hospital, is now entirely recovered and back with the others. Lee Ware was slightly wounded in the head when the Hun avions bombed the wounded at the Post de Secours, but his wound did not incapacitate him in any way. "Whitey" Myers and Jack Marshall returned from permission at Aix-les-Bains on August 25th. They report a good time, and add that everybody is apparently doing the utmost to make things agreeable to the Americans on leave. Stephen Pell, of the Section, whom we all know through his poems, was wounded quite seriously in the foot at the same time Lee Ware was, and has been granted convalescent leave to the United States.

It is now more than a year since the little bunch that left here as the Armco Ambulance Corps reached France, and they report that all things Armco grow more distinct an allowable to them as the days go by. You know it is within our power to make the boys "over there" just as proud of us as we are of them.

Their letters tell of being camped in wonderful woods, and of watching Allied anti-aircraft batteries banging away at Boche avions, who resemble tiny silver fish away up in the blue. They tell that German prisoners thinking we are covering a good deal of front, considering we have only a few thousand soldiers there. They report all things along the front going in good shape, but warn us not to be too elated, for there is much yet to be done. America, they say, will never know how near to defeat were the Allied armies in the spring. But France is in high spirits now. The French soldier is always glad to tell of the courage and success of the American fighting man, just as for years he has been most anxious to commend the American Ambulance Service.

To all France, the United States, its plans and accomplishments, is their greatest and fondest hope. Editions of the Paris daily papers are half full of what America is doing in France and at home for the winning of the war; so "Go to it," one of the boys writes. "You're the backbone, you know, and I am sure the men over here are appreciating, more and more, your wonderful progress." What an inspiration this is to us Armco men left behind! How can one help but work harder and longer?

Here is the way our fighting men "over there" behave; and remember this is no "story," but one of our Armco boys with the S. S. U. 646 telling it: "Did I ever tell you of the U. S. infantryman I met one day just behind the lines? He was wounded, and when he was discharged from the hospital his company had moved to another part of the front, so he set out across country to join them. He fell in with some French support lines just before the attack. He could not speak any French, but found an officer who could speak English, so he volunteered to go with them through the attack. For five days he fought right along with these Frenchmen, and at one time so distinguished himself that he was recommended for an Army citation. When I met him he had just come out, and was going back to join his own outfit. I carried him some distance on his way and heard his story." That's the way they "carry on" over there, and we can make them just as proud of us as we are of them (I say it again) if we will "carry on" with the same spirit over here.

LABOR'S LIFT

---From the Memphis Commercial-Appeal.

Armco Men and Women

march on Labor Day.

The patriotic "Win-the-War" Labor Day parade in Middletown was an event long to be remembered. Between 6,000 and 7,000 men and women, carrying flags or decked out in them, marched for their country on that day, and the lone ranks were interspersed with many interesting and attractive floats.

The Amalgamated War Savings Society of the American Rolling Mill Co. worked out the plans for the big day, and its great success was due to their efforts. They decided that the parade should be a patriotic one, that it should include more than just labor unions, and every laboring man and woman in the industries of Middletown was invited to march. The Middletown Chamber of Commerce was asked to help get the industries in line, which it gladly did. The men marched as employees of the different industries, instead of as members of labor unions or crafts. The generous and patriotic idea of the labor men met with enthusiastic response by all the large industries of Middletown, each of which was well represented in the parade.

The Armco Division led the parade, more than 4,000 strong. Mr. M. E. Danford was marshal of the Armco Division, and under him, in charge of the different sections, were C. W. Davis, Leo Reinhartz, Edward A. Kramer and S. R. Rectanus.

Each division carried a large number of banners with fitting war slogans, many of them dealing with personal opinions of the Kaiser.

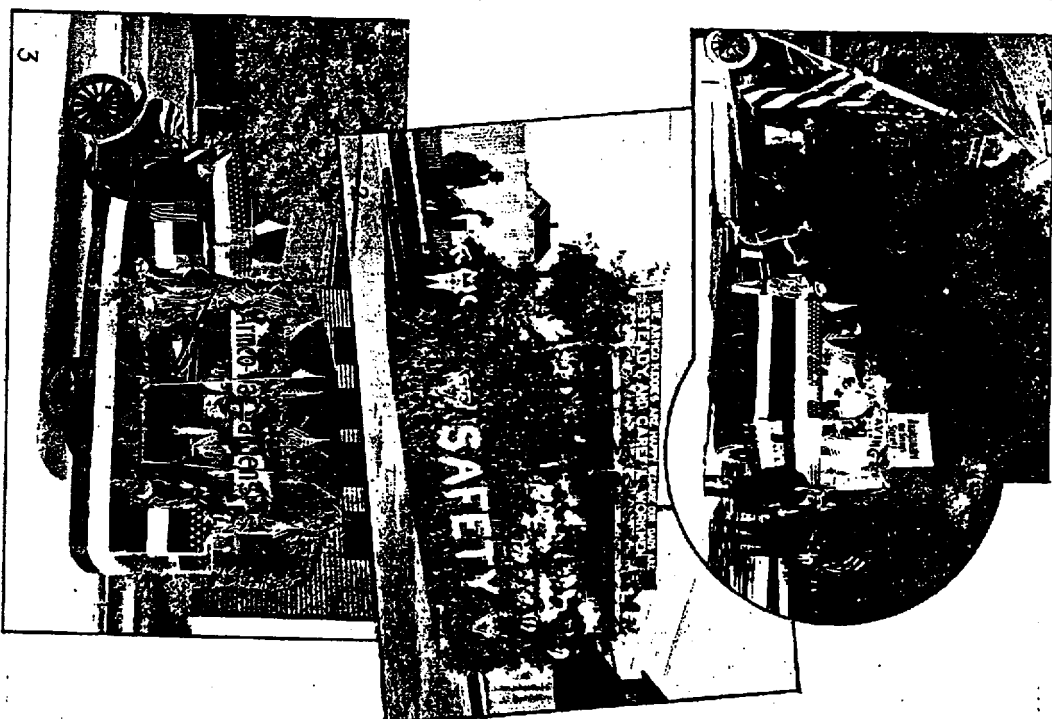

Mr. F. M. Bateman was grand marshal of the parade, and his aids were Mr. J. T. Crawford and Mr. G. F. Ahlbrandt, of the Sales Department, and Mr. Bennett Chapple, of the Publicity Department.

Immediately after the parade Mr. George M. Verity introduced Mr. Fred Croxton, Federal Food and Labor Administrator in the State of Ohio, who made a stirring address to an enthusiastic audience at Armco Field.

The afternoon was filled with sports. A tug-of-war, fat men's race and three-legged race gave it the color of an old-fashioned Fourth of July. A baseball game between an Armco picked team and the Armco Colored Club was won by the Armco picked team by a score of 4 to 1, and fifteen watermelons were distributed to the winners and five watermelons to the losers. Following the ball game the pie-eating and watermelon-eating contests were staged on a high platform in front of the grand stand. Both of these "classical" events were won by a young colored lad with voracious appetite and a big aperture to fill.

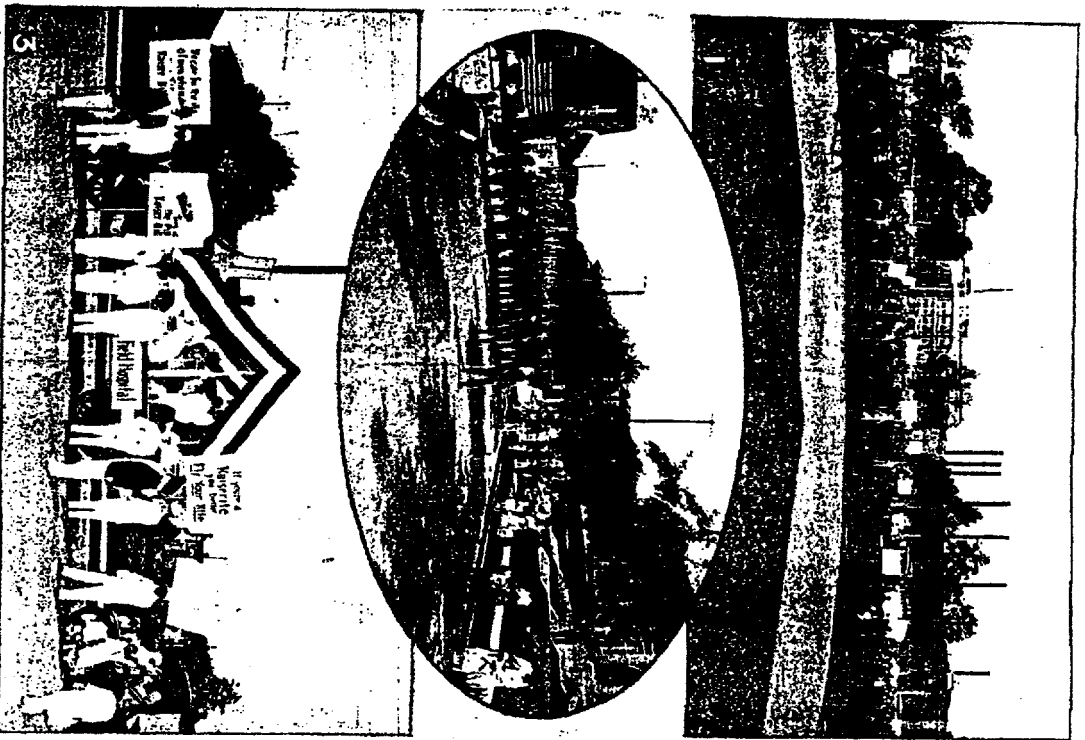

The evening was given over to a grand lawn fete, with open-air dancing on the Armco Tennis Courts. The refreshment booths and the dance were conducted by the ladies of the Red Cross, and the proceeds for the day netted a considerable sum for their work. It was a real "Win-the-War" patriotic Labor Day.
