Paul Cahalane called today to tell me that effective July 1 Maryland Casualty will be replaced by the CNA Insurance Group. Paul wasn't too familiar with CNA except to report that they are part of a larger corporation called the CNA Financial Corporation. The change in insurance carrier applies to workmen's compensation, general liability (including product liability) and automobile liability. Cahalane is putting together a letter to inform our plants and other personnel who need to know of this change.

Based on your previous comments on Maryland Casualty, I am sure their demise will not upset you.
