Dear Mr. O'Keefe:

I returned from my vacation some days ago, and have managed to find the top of my desk again. I have to go to Washington for the next day or two on a matter in which I was involved last year, but I anticipate that I shall be reasonably free of out of town engagements during the remainder of this month, with the exception of September 27 and 28, and, perhaps, the 29th when I shall be in Omaha to attend a hearing.

Incidentally, this trip will take me into your neighborhood, and I wonder, therefore, whether you can, or wish to, see me in Wichita. Let me say, at once, that this is not the best arrangement for my convenience, for I would prefer to see and talk with you at my office (for purely personal reasons). However, I am mindful of the necessity, frequently, of being confronted with the problems at issue where they occur, and if something of the sort could be looked into in the first instance, I might be able to give you better advice than I could at a distance, as to what should be done.

Very truly yours,

Robert A. Kehoe, M.D.
Professor Emeritus of Occupational Medicine
