...bright and gay to soft and romantic in a single room with variable rheostat controls. There are many other ways to decorate with light, using tools

DOWN LIGHTING: Incandescent bulbs which are recessed or attached to the ceiling. Often called "pin-hole" or "eyeball" lighting, these can be used to flood a single table or chair with light for excellent visibility. Or they can be used in much the same manner as stage lighting to dramatize a work of art or a special feature of the home.

WASHING: "Wash" or indirect lighting, it utilizes fluorescent tubes and directs their soft light up or down the walls of the room, or both.

This provides basic illumination throughout the room, does away with the so-called "hot spots" created with the use of only small table lamps or ceiling fixtures.

LUMINOUS PANELS: Glass or plastic panels housing fluorescent tubes in ceilings or walls. These "wash" an entire room, such as the kitchen or bathroom, with an even, virtually shadowless light.

ELECTROLUMINESCENT PANELS: These still are in the developmental or "someday" stage. They are laminated sheets of glass coated with phosphors that will emit light of varying colors. Roughly the thickness of wall paneling, researchers envision the day when homes will use these to create walls of light. They may also heat and cool
