

International Champion

At Left: "Larry" Neusslein, Washington, D. C., winner of International Small-Bore Championship three times with U. S. 22 N. R. A.'s.

At Right: Composite of championship targets shot by Neusslein at Ockenburgh, Holland. Score: 198 x 200 at 50 meters.

DUPLICATING his triumph at Rome, Italy, last year, "Larry" Neusslein, Washington, D. C., won the World's Small-Bore Championship at the 1928 International Matches held at Ockenburgh, Holland.

Neusslein first captured this title during the 1920 Olympics, making him a three-time holder of it. Each time he has shot U. S. 22 N. R. A.'s.

These cartridges have won a dominant place in the minds of shooters the world over because of their unfailing accuracy. They can be relied upon to give the shooter all that he holds for, as is proved by Neusslein's series of championship wins.
