Silver-plated coffee set

A Lock for Sockets

A SMALL laminated padlock which can be used to lock out the electrical plugs of appliances now is available to help safeguard children from the dangers of electrical current.

Parents can reduce the potential dangers to youngsters by locking this tough, but tiny padlock, through the hole in either prong of the electrical plugs of lamps, power tools and other appliances to keep children from inserting them into outlets.

The padlock, which retails for 35 cents, can also be used for locking zippers, brief cases, golf bags, mail boxes, trunks, meters and telephones.

It weighs just seven-eighths of an ounce and is a little over an inch high. Laminated steel, a feature of larger padlocks, gives it unusual strength for its size.

Additional safety uses include locking tool boxes and electric fuse and switch boxes. The padlock also comes in a slightly larger (just under an inch and a half) and more expensive (50 cents) model.

For information on where to buy these padlocks, write to The Modern Living Section, in care of The Examiner, P. O. Box 3193, San Francisco, or telephone SUTter 1-2424, Extension 272, between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. Sunday through Friday.
