To help better educate inside and outside of the EPA on the economics behind the Trump/Pruitt agenda?

I was at this event last week: <https://www.epa.gov/newsreleases/administrator-pruitt-announces-new-office-continuous-improvement>

Please see below and attached regarding me:

My name is Mr Darren Brady Nelson and I am an Australian-American economist from Brisbane Queensland and Milwaukee Wisconsin. I am back in the Washington DC area for the third time in five years to seek a full-time career in the American liberty scene. I am an international expert in economic policy, regulation and pricing with extensive experience in politics, non-profits, media, industry, government and consulting/contracting. I am very well versed in Right and Left economics (especially Austrian, Chicago and Public Choice on the Right) as well as in many industries (especially energy, environment and infrastructure). I also have significant print, radio and TV media experience. I have mainly worked in and around the public sector since the mid-1990s, as both an employee and a freelancer, in Australia, New Zealand, the UK and the USA. This includes, more recently, working for a conservative-libertarian Australian Federal Senator (in 2016 and 2017) and on a conservative-populist American Presidential Campaign (in 2016). I mainly write for:

- 1) Townhall Finance (<https://finance.townhall.com/columnists/darrenbradynelson>);
- 2) LibertyWorks (<https://libertyworks.org.au/author/darren-n/>); and
- 3) the Heartland Institute (<https://www.heartland.org/policybot/?author=d-brady-nelson>).
