

is participating in the U. S. Public Health Service study we are doing now. We went there and they said, "Do you see this room? This is the room that Greenburg, Bloomfield and the others used over 30 years ago to do their dust counts when they did their first studies on asbestos." The plant had gone to the trouble to move out the work that was in progress there, and to reconstruct the facility, with a bit of nostalgia, and present it to us in continuation of work which had been started by the U. S. Public Health Service over 30 years ago.

FROM THE AUDIENCE: What was the size of the employee group at Dr. Goodman's plant?

DR. GOODMAN: It has varied from as low as 367 employees in 1932, during the "Great Depression", to a high of 1605 in 1965. The latest figure I have is about 1527 for the year 1967.
