

NOTICE: If the film image is less clear than this notice, it is due to the quality of the document being filmed

00059

DEI

NLI 109731

53

Single and double bed in wardroom in this case where the patient is being attended of the paravertebra when used.

5-21

NOTICE: If the film image is less clear than this notice, it is due to the quality of the document being filmed

Bright and Cheerful But Unobtrusive

Please File

The color scheme suggested in this poster has been carefully selected by experts to give an air of the most refined and a large number of the found in a room, and the color scheme. It is a scheme that is that is to be the color for the or better yet.

SUPERINTENDENT Raymond G. Laub, of the Greenpoint Hospital, Brooklyn, N. Y., wanted a color scheme for his wards that would be "bright and cheerful and yet so unobtrusive that shortly after leaving the hospital the patient would be unable to recall the particular colors used on the walls of his room."

He selected the color scheme shown in our illustration, not only for the children's ward but for the remainder of the hospital as well.

And his choice has been a happy one. Not only has it won the approval of his most critical patients, but it has been discovered that in the majority of cases the bright, cheerful colors used actually hasten the day of recovery.

Many hospitals have found flat paint made of Dutch Boy white-lead and Dutch Boy flattening oil to be a "good cheer" paint. It gives a soft, velvety finish without gloss or glare—a finish that is restful to tired eyes.

Walls painted with this famous white-lead-andoil paint do not crack, scale or chip, and are as workable as silk.

And yet Dutch Boy flat paint costs no more than other paints. In fact, its wearing qualities make it the most economical paint on the end.

Our Department of Decoration is at the service of hospitals seeking advice on interior decoration.
This service entails no obligation. Write us.

NATIONAL LEAD COMPANY

New York	Boston	Chicago	San Francisco
Cleveland	Buffalo	Denver	St. Louis
John T. Lewis & Son Co.			Philadelphia
Plumsted Lead & Oil Co.			Pittsburgh

00059

NLI 109732