

April 8, 1922.

Mr. Clinton H. Crane,
St. Joseph Lead Company,
61 Broadway, New York City.

My dear Mr. Crane:

We have collected a large amount of data on physical examination methods in a variety of industries and have come to the conclusion that it is impossible to give any generalized directions which will serve effectively in different localities and under different sets of circumstances. It happens that at the end of May Dr. Wade Wright, who has charge of this practical aspect of our work, will be in St. Louis attending the meetings of the American Association of Industrial Physicians and Surgeons. He will be glad to go to your works and discuss the whole problem as it presents itself, giving your employment offices the benefit of his wide experience in the matter. I feel sure that this is the most effective way in which we can perform the service you desire, and I trust the delay until the end of May will not seriously inconvenience you. Should the plan prove suitable I wish you would let me know in order that Dr. Wright may get in communication with you and arrange his trip.

Very sincerely yours,

Cecil K. Drinker, M.D.

YARABU JACIDEM ORAYAH
IN THE
YAWTUOOC A BIGNART
LIBRARY OF MEDICINE