SUBJECT: PUBLICATION STATUS REPORT

We are nearing completion of our efforts to develop three additional manuscripts for the publication of our primate and rodent studies of HCl and PVC. The first paper has been approved by the VI and the last two are in the final stages of revision. We had expected this work to be completed in September. However, recent editorial decisions, journal requirements to get the formal approval of all authors (all at different locations and with competing agendas), and competing priorities for clerical resources have served to delay closure.

Although November has already arrived, I am hopeful that we will have all papers ready for publication by the end of the year.
