(d) OBJECTION. Subpart (d) to Interrogatory No. 10 is objected to on the grounds that it is overly broad, burdensome, and requests information which is proprietary in nature. Further, the interrogatory seeks information which is not reasonably calculated to lead to the discovery of admissible evidence. Without waiving said objection, and in the spirit of liberal discovery, defendant responds that the friction materials, referenced above, contained chrysotile asbestos, 25-65% by weight, depending on the product.

(e) OBJECTION. Subpart (e) to Interrogatory No. 10 is objected to on the grounds that it is overly broad, vague, ambiguous, unintelligible, burdensome and seeks information which
