PCB file

OP&D, Aug. 9, 1971

PCB's in Chicken Broilers Within Acceptable Levels

Laboratory analyses of samples of slaughtered broilers in ten Southeastern States continue to show that any polychlorinated biphenyls they may contain are within acceptable levels, the Department of Agriculture reports.

By last count, analytical results had been reported on 171 samples of poultry and hogs, taken since July 23 in the ten-State area.