Q Were there also pictures of the vice presidents?
A No.
Q Okay. Where did you receive that information?
A From the minutes of the membership meetings.
Q Okay. Then in this time period where Mr. Miller is the president and Mr. Weyburne is the vice president, another individual from Raybestos-Manhattan is chairman of something called the Data Book and Technical Committee. Is that the same committee that Mr. Miller previously had chaired before assuming responsibilities as president?
A Yes, that's the old -- yes.
Q And you also identify an Art Litchfield of Raybestos-Manhattan who was serving on this active committee. Where did you obtain that type of information?
A From the --
Q Would that be from the minutes?
A From the minutes of meetings of the Data Book and Technical Committee.
Q Okay. Did you ever meet Mr. Frank Miller?
A Nope.
Q Moving on to page 6 of the history, in the two years ending 1953, you mentioned other companies that the Institute welcomed for active membership, one of which is the
