A Discussion with EPA Administrator Wheeler on Recent Successes

Wednesday, July 29, 2020
10:00 AM – 11:00 AM

Featured Speaker

The Honorable Andrew R. Wheeler
Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency

Introduction By

The Honorable Kim R. Holmes
Executive Vice President, The Heritage Foundation

Hosted By

Daren Bakst

Senior Research Fellow, The Heritage Foundation

In the first half of 2020, the EPA has already taken numerous critical actions to help protect the environment while respecting the rule of law, federalism, and transparency. The agency has finalized efforts to both ensure that environmental regulations are based on sound and transparent science and environmental protections do more good than harm. Too often, however, opponents of these common sense reforms have used myths and scare tactics to distort the truth of the agency's actions. These critics have even objected to the EPA using reasonable enforcement discretion during the pandemic. The reality is the EPA is taking a number of practical steps that are way past due. Join us as we hear directly from EPA Administrator Andrew Wheeler to get the truth about the agency's 2020 regulatory actions and what they mean to Americans.
