Dear Doctor Goodman:-

I am returning to you herewith your table in which I have made a few slight alterations and additions, and to which I have attached certain pencil notations which I trust you will be able to read.

I also return your typewriten material. I have raised certain questions and have made certain notations in pencil on the front page. These are merely for the purpose of giving you certain of my own points of view. Obviously you need not take them more seriously than you wish.

I have begun at the bottom of your first page and have re-written all of the material which refers to our analytical data down to the end of the first paragraph on Page 3 of your typewritten material. I have added some comments in my typewritten material and I have also made a few additional pencil notations in the material which follows.

All of this has been done somewhat hastily since my time is quite short. I hope I have made my meaning clear and that I have been able to give you as much help as you wish.

Cordially yours,
