Attached is a copy of the investigation of the orthoxylene spill that occurred in February. Please review your tankage practices and design and be certain that such spills can be avoided in your unit. We are not suggesting that you meet any definite standards because each tankage system has different requirements. But, you should review the recommendations outlined in this investigation and verify that your systems are adequate or modify them if changes are appropriate.

Please confirm to me by 7/1/83 that your systems have been reviewed and the actions you deem necessary (if any), are being implemented.
