know what this is -- is of tremendous importance. It is almost like saying if you work in a diamond factory, you shouldn't smoke.

Cancer of the lung, people wiped out in your trade and people wouldn't smoke cigarettes, period.

Q But he went on further in later years, didn't he, talking about the risk of lung cancer among asbestos workers, didn't he?

A He studied it in quite more detail.

Q In fact, in 1968 he published an article in JAMA, which is the Journal of the American Medical Association?

A That is correct.

Q Well respected journal?

A Yes.

Q And didn't he say in 1968 that there is really no increased risk of lung cancer in asbestos workers who don't smoke?

A He points that out.

He also points out in his study that he had so few workers that didn't smoke, that he didn't have
