Unfortunately, David Ross is unavailable to meet with you on May 8th. However, David's Deputy Assistant Administrator, Lee Forsgren would be happy to meet with your CEO. Lee is available @ 9a, 10 and 11am. Please advise.

Hello Crystal,

I hope you've had a great week thus far!

My CEO is again coming to Washington DC on May 8. We would very much appreciate a few minutes with Mr. Ross, if he is in town during that time.

Thank you!

Thank you for your email . As you can imagine, it is a busy time for Mr. Ross. At this time, Mr. Ross' schedule is near full through mid-June. As we enter summer, we will be considering opportunities such as yours. We thank you for your interest and look forward to working with you towards a possible visit in the future. Please don't hesitate to contact me should you have any questions.

Hi Crystal,

I just spoke with our CEO—he and our other executives will be coming to D.C. and available for meetings on March 20, but there may be some availability on March 23.

Being two months out, I am sure there is a lot of uncertainty as scheduling is concerned, but could we get something penciled in now?

Thank you,

My apologies for this late response to your request . Due to Mr. Ross' scheduling conflicts, he is unavailable to meet with you this week. I understand you have already met with Mr. Lee Forsgren. I would be happy to check for alternate dates later on during this month or February.

Thank you, Crystal.

We appreciate that follow-up. However, with Adm. Pruitt being unavailable, could we get on AA Ross' schedule? We know Lee, and actually just met with him a few weeks ago.
