Subject: quick update

Friends and colleagues – I just wanted to share a quick media hit by Politico Influence (see below) about Alpha Strategies, LLC signing two more clients this week. The American Alliance for Economic Development (AAED) and the Mega Company.

I am excited to advocate for AAED, a new industry trade association in Washington, D.C., representing the interests of regional centers, and investors from China and others around the world, in the popular EB-5 visa program to push for meaningful regulatory reforms and address some of the serious policy concerns in the program.

The Mega Company has also retained my strategic advisory services to help guide the company on global market access issues and identify opportunities within the Federal Government.

I hope all is well and I look forward to catching up with you soon.

Best,
Adnan

AHEAD OF THE FILINGS — JALIL WILL LOBBY ON EB-5 PROGRAM: Adnan Jalil of Alpha Strategies has signed the American Alliance for Economic Development, a new trade group created to advocate for the EB-5 visa program, as a client. Jalil, who worked as a congressional liaison on Trump’s campaign, helped start a short-lived firm called Aselus Strategies shortly after Trump’s inauguration before going on to start Alpha Strategies. He signed the government of the Democratic Republic of the Congo as a client last year on a contract worth $45,000 a month.

— Jalil will lobby on behalf of EB-5 regional centers and investors as lawmakers consider reforming the program. Sen. Chuck Grassley (R-Iowa) called the program rife with "cases of fraud, corruption and threats to national security" on Tuesday during a Senate Judiciary Committee hearing. Jalil has also signed the Mega Company as a client, although he will be consulting for the company rather than lobbying.
