WORKERS INSTITUTE FOR SAFETY AND HEALTH

DESCRIPTION

The Workers Institute for Safety and Health fills the critical need to (1) identify information concerning the special safety and health hazards of workers and their families, and (2) marshal human, monetary and material resources to assist in their control. The Institute accomplishes these purposes through research and education, in collaboration with other elements of the labor movement and the scientific community, as an independent, not-for profit, tax-exempt organization.

NOTE: THIS DOCUMENT DID NOT ENTER THE FILES

To prevent exposure to hazards that are factors of disease and injury to intervene in the process that results in such effects, and encourage the development of effective treatment of diseased and injured workers and their families, the Institute accepts, administers and coordinates resources from the labor movement, government and private sector organizations. It is empowered to focus these resources on behalf of, and in fulfillment of, organized labor and the needs of the working men and women of this nation, through a board of governors elected from the ranks and officers of American unions and labor bodies by the founding trustees.

The Institute is incorporated in Columbus, Ohio. Founding trustees are Jacob Clayman, President, Industrial Union Department (AFL-CIO); Warren Smith, Secretary-Treasurer, Ohio AFL-CIO; Peter Bommarito, President, United Rubber Workers; J. C. Turner, President, The Operating Engineers; William Lucy, Secretary-Treasurer, State, County and Municipal Employees; George Parker, President, Flint Glass Workers; George Perkel, Director of Health and Safety, Clothing and Textile Workers; George Taylor, Director of Health and Safety, AFL-CIO; Fred Hoehler, Director, George Meany Center for Labor Studies; Leonard Smith, Secretary-Treasurer, Kentucky AFL-CIO; and Sheldon W. Samuels, Director of Health, Safety and Environment, Industrial Union Department (AFL-CIO).

In collaboration with the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health, the Institute's initial project will assist workers who have a high risk of cancer because of past exposure to cancer-causing agents such as beta-Naphthylamine and asbestos.
