AIR

Arizona SIP/New Source Review for Stationary Sources

AIR

Interim final rule of the EPA amends regulations under 40 CFR 52 to defer the imposition of sanctions based on a concurrent proposed rule that approves revisions to the Arizona Department of Environmental Quality portion of the Arizona SIP. The revisions correct new source review preconstruction permit requirements for major stationary sources and major modifications to address deficiencies identified by the EPA in a Nov. 2, 2015, final rule (80 FR 67319). The current action defers the imposition of offset and highway sanctions that were triggered by the 2015 final rule. The rule is effective June 1, 2017. Comments are due July 3, 2017. Idaho SIP/Logan PM-2.5 Nonattainment Area

AIR

Supplemental proposed rule of the EPA amends regulations under 40 CFR 52 to approve revisions to the Idaho SIP relating to the Idaho portion of the Logan, Utah-Idaho, 2006 24-hour fine particulate matter (PM-2.5) NAAQS nonattainment area. The rule approves Idaho's attainment demonstration and 2014 motor vehicle emissions budgets (MVEBs) as early progress budgets. The rule also conditionally approves reasonable further progress quantitative milestones and revised MVEBs for the Idaho portion based on the state's commitment to adopt and submit updates to these attainment plan elements within one year of the final rule's effective date. The current action supplements an Oct. 27, 2016, proposed rule (81 FR 74741) to address provisions for which the EPA deferred action on Jan. 4, 2017 (82 FR 729). Comments are due July 3, 2017.
