Samantha and Brittany –

As I mentioned last week, a broad spectrum of agricultural organizations have compiled comments for EPA's docket on regulations. I am attaching a copy of the comment letter, which was filed a short while ago.

The comments raise a number of very important issues for producers. If your schedules permit, we would welcome the chance to meet with you to reinforce their importance to our members.

Thanks very much for your willingness to look these over.

Cordially,

Paul

Samantha –

On Monday, a large number of agricultural organizations will make a joint submission to the EPA docket EPA-HQ- OA-2017-0190. American Farm Bureau is coordinating this effort. I've included below a list of the groups currently signing onto the submission.

Once the submission is final, I would like to send you a copy. Additionally, I know we would appreciate the chance to meet with you to underscore the importance of these issues to agriculture generally. We'd be happy to work around your schedule if that is something that would be worthwhile for you.

Thanks very much, and let me know if I can answer any questions.

Paul
