

MMF 21 1384

10-11-1950
10-11-1950
10-11-1950
10-11-1950
10-11-1950

Trifluoromethyl Ketone

The CUUMAR leached from the silo walls into cattle feed, contaminating the Hineys and their farm and cattle, the suit claims.

At one point in the Treasury's testimony, Bailey began to speak of "problems" the Oppenheims experienced on the farm prior to his purchase. Defense attorneys quickly cut Bailey off, objecting that any testimony about the "problems" was hearsay.

(See PCB TRIAL Page 8)

and therefore inadmissible

In other testimony Tuesday, a deposition from the ex-president of C and B Silo Company was read into the court record, and jurors watched a videotape of the 62-year-old former CUMAR, according to both sides in the suit, was used to protect side walls from acids created by sludge.