 their flowers, and the "Skunk Cabbage" we cherish as a rare native.

The Calla lily is a South African herb named for Francesco Zantedeschia, an Italian botanist. It got its start in this country as a florist plant, grown in glasshouses for the later winter and early spring trade. It is still grown in the East and Middle West as a hot-house plant and individual blooms sell for $1 each in the florist shops of those areas.

 but no war in the long run is any more deadly for people than the exclusion of nature, of God-given greenness, natural shade and pure air. Beautification of roadsides is a step in the right direction, but beautification of cities and suburbs also should be planned and activated.
 People need roots just as much as trees.

have received national acclaim.
 Directors of the American Rhododendron Society have made special trips to the West Coast just to study these specimen plants. Tour date, Thursday.
